Judge Rules Ohio Cognovit Note Law Unconstitutional

CINCINNATI (AP) — Continuing his drive to protect consumers from repossession of property without a hearing, Hamilton County Municipal Court Judge Paul Gilday declared cognovit notes — installment contracts purchased from retailers — unconstitutional.

It was the third time in a month the jurist has thrown out state statutes pertaining to repossession.

In earlier decisions Judge Gilday threw out statutes permitting repossession of property for missed payments and the state replevin law, permitting creditors to attach bank accounts and property for bills due.

Judge Gilday dismissed 12 cases with his decision Wednesday and attorneys for 11 more asked for continuances.

Purchasers of cognovit notes, mainly finance companies, are authorized to seek judgments in court against signers who default on payments, he said.

In signing a cognovit note, a purchaser gives up his right to notification of a court hearing and consequently forfeits any opportunity to defend himself, he added.

Judge Gilday said that in the future holders of cognovit notes must prove that signers understood what they signed or he will dismiss the cases.

"Certain provisions of these notes are unconstitutional," Gilday declared. "I cannot in good conscience grant these judgments until I have proof that the people understood what they were signing."

He explained that customers sign the notes when making purchases from retailers on installment plans. The notes are then sold to finance companies who collect the installments. Sometimes the notes are sold several times.

The judge noted that cognovit notes used by one company make the purchasers give up their right to file any claims against their creditors "whether for returned goods, faulty goods, failure to comply with the agreement or any other cause."

Such waivers are unconstitutional, he said, in light of recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions which protect the right of defendants to answer civil complaints in court.

His replevin decision, barring creditors from attaching property or money, without a full hearing for the debtors, was adopted by the full nine-judge court.

His decision against the constitutionality of another state law permitting creditors to attach property for defaulted payments not adopted by the court.

Gilday noted that his decisions apply to his court only and that other jurists were free to continue handling such cases as they see fit.

But he challenged attorneys who lost the 12 decisions Wednesday to appeal their cases to the Hamilton County Common Pleas Court.

Billion-Dollar Trade Pact Predicted

Nixon Seeks Japanese Deal

HONOLULU (AP) — President Nixon, beginning a round of mid-Pacific conferences today, put Vietnam first on the agenda, then a bid for a billion-dollar economic transfusion from Japan.

Before opening formal summit talks with visiting Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, Nixon set aside the morning for a Vietnam review with Elsworth Bunker, U.S. Ambassador to Saigon.

The President and Mrs. Nixon were on hand at Hickam Air Force base — a major target of Japan's 1941 attack that brought the United States into World War II — to welcome the stocky Tanaka, who was installed as prime minister only last month.

The President and his advisers hope two days of sessions with Tanaka will produce a formal agreement by Japan to place an extra billion dollars on orders for American goods ranging from jet aircraft to feed grain.

Actually, the U.S. government would like Japan to up the ante to $2 billion, but preliminary talks in Tokyo indicated the lesser amount was more likely.

Americans currently are buying Japanese goods worth $3.8 billion more than they are selling to the Japanese each year. This imbalance is one factor behind the weakness of the dollar in international money markets.

Nixon and Tanaka will also talk about developing ties between their two countries and China.

While in Hawaii, the President and Mrs. Nixon are scheduling some activities that presumably could benefit the chief executive's campaign for a second term. Mrs. Nixon, for example, was to spend more than seven hours today on the island of Hawaii, visiting good-works projects and being fêted at an evening luau.

The Nixons, in what was regarded as at least a semi-political event, spent an hour Wednesday night shaking hands with about 600 Hawaii business, political and civic leaders at the oceanside estate of longtime Republican Clare Boothe Luce.

Nixon's schedule for today was confined solely to official business, however. Henry A. Kissinger, his foreign policy adviser, described the morning meeting with Bunker as a review of the situation in Vietnam and the search for a negotiated settlement of the war.

In welcoming Tanaka at a state arrival ceremony in a Hickam hangar, Nixon said: "May we always meet as we meet today, working for the SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Navy pilots destroyed a giant ammunition depot in North Vietnam Wednesday, the U.S. Command reported today. Fliers from the carrier Kitty Hawk said their bombs caused 100 secondary explosions and seven large fires at the Dong Ngan depot 13 miles northeast of Vinh.

Pilots from the carrier Oriskany hit a major fuel depot a mile west of Vinh, while other Oriskany fliers attacked a storage area 39 miles to the south. The Command said they caused five explosions and a huge fire at the fuel depot, and at the storage area destroyed more than 100 supply crates and damaged another 100.

A third target was the Cam Pha fuel depot 37 miles northeast of Haiphong. The Command said pilots from the Midway destroyed four supply buildings there and touched off a large explosion and a fire.

In South Vietnam, Communist forces rained rockets into the big air base at Bien Hoa during the night and carried out a series of hit-and-run terror and sabotage attacks at scattered points.

The Saigon command said 15 Vietnamese were killed and 51 were wounded in the attacks. One American also was wounded, and eight U.S. and South Vietnamese planes were destroyed or damaged at Bien Hoa. Two-thirds of the Vietnamese casualties were civilians.

Two Marine squadrons of A4 bombers and an Air Force squadron of A37 bombers are stationed at Bien Hoa, or 50 to 60 planes. They support ground operations in the southern half of South Vietnam and Cambodia.

Bien Hoa is also used as a forward operating base for scores of American jets based in Thailand. They refuel, rearm and receive maintenance at Bien Hoa.

It was the second time this month the base had been shelled. An 86-round rocket barrage on Aug. 1 killed one American Marine and one Vietnamese, wounded 31 Americans and 24 Vietnamese and damaged two Marine A4 jets.

18 Skyjacks Said Failures

Ransom Cases Don't Pay Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — All 18 attempts this year to hijack an aircraft for ransom have failed, Federal Aviation Administration Administrator John H. Shaffer said today.

In every instance, he said, the persons involved either have been arrested, killed, or are under the control of a foreign government.

"The recent action by the Algerian government in returning the $1.5 million in ransom money paid by U.S. airlines in two hijacking incidents must be a severe blow to anyone who still imagines that air piracy can be a profitable enterprise," Shaffer said.

There now is virtually no place on earth a hijacker can go with the realistic expectation that he will be extorted.

"When a person buys a ticket on an airliner with the idea of hijacking it for profit," Shaffer said, "he has really bought himself a ticket to prison or to the morgue."

Hijackings for extortion began last Nov. 24 when a man known only as D. Cooper disappeared after parachuting from an airliner with $200,000 in ransom money.

Many government officials are confident Cooper was killed in the jump. However, no body has been found, and the money has not been recovered.

All 20 hijack attempts since two last year—have ended in failure, Shaffer said.

In five cases the hijackers escaped by parachute. All but one were tracked down on the ground and arrested, and the ransom paid them was recovered. The exception was a hijacker who surrendered to authorities in Honduras and claimed to have sent the $303,000 in ransom to recipients in Red China.

Of the 27 persons involved in the 20 hijackings, Shaffer said, three were killed and 17 were taken into custody by U.S. officials.

Russians Face Loss Of Naval Bases In Egypt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union may soon be forced to give up its naval bases in Egypt, some intelligence sources here say.

Relations between the two countries have been rapidly deteriorating in recent months and President Anwar Sadat of the United Arab Republic already has told the Russians to withdraw their air force and army units.

Sources report a growing belief in Washington's intelligence community that the Russian navy may soon follow suit.

There have been reports of a secret meeting in which Sadat told his subordinates the Soviet navy would leave Egypt. Officials here say they know about the meeting but cannot confirm the reports. They say they are inclined to accept an earlier statement by Sadat that the Russians could continue to use the naval facilities.

But one official said it was "significant, or at least interesting" that Moscow has not commented on Sadat's statement.

Sources say there has not yet been any change in Russian use of their naval installations at Alexandria, Mersa Matruh and the Gulf of Sallum on the Libyan border.

Loss of the naval facilities would not have the same impact on the Soviet Union as its earlier loss of air bases, although it would be another psychological blow, sources said.

Loss of the air bases has shown up in the recent cessation of Soviet reconnaissance flights over the U.S. sixth fleet the sources said.

The loss of Egyptian air bases also was serious for broad Soviet military planning, officials here say, MIG23, using the bases, covered the southern half of Greece and Turkey, two NATO allies of the United States. They complemented the air coverage over northern Greece and Turkey from MIG23s based in the Soviet Union and Bulgaria.

Since the Soviet Union has no aircraft carriers in the Mediterranean, the Egyptian bases seem irreplaceable, officials say.

But in the event of loss of Egyptian naval installations, the Russians still could use two bases in Syria, at Latakia and Tartus.

Judicial Review Panel Pioneer In Field

By LEIF ERICKSON Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A California commission which recommended the firing of a Los Angeles judge this week is the nation's pioneering agency in policing judicial competency and conduct.

The California Commission on Judicial Qualifications was created by a constitutional amendment approved by a 3-1 margin in the 1960 general election.

Part of the California plan conceived by retired California Chief Justice Phil S. Gibson to assure confidence in judicial integrity, it has become a model adopted by 25 states.

The nine-member commission recommended Tuesday that the California Supreme Court remove Los Angeles Municipal Court Judge Leland W. Geiler from office.

It was only the second time in the commission's 12-year history that it has made a removal recommendation, which must be ratified by the State Supreme Court after briefing and hearing.

The first was rejected by the Supreme Court eight years ago and that judge still is serving on the bench.

But the mere fact that the commission exists and functions achieves substantial effect, Justice Murray Draper of the State Court of Appeals here believes. Draper, the commission's chairman, reported in a legislative hearing that seven judges had resigned or retired in the course of investigations during a two-year period.

The latest commission report accused Geiler of prejudice and bias against the public defender's office. It charged that, in one case, the judge jabbed an electric prod into a public defender's buttocks to discourage the defender's efforts for his client.

Geiler also was accused by the commission of relieving eight public defenders because they refused to plead their clients guilty, as the judge desired.

Draper said the bulk of complaints against judges have no merit, but when complaints develop substantial evidence of physical or mental incapacity, senility or misconduct, the commission investigates.

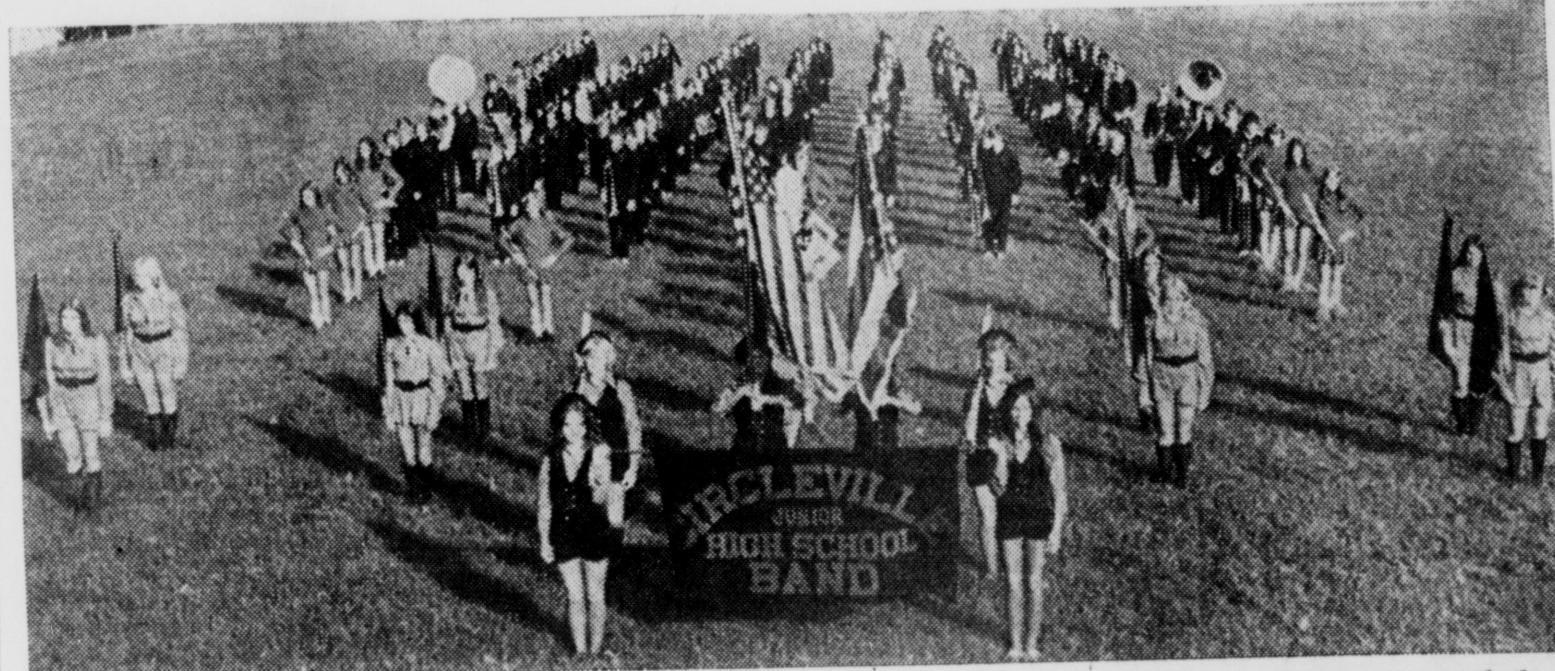

The first look is made by Jack E. Frankel, the commission's executive secretary since its inception. If he finds the complaint has substance, the commission requests investigators from the attorney general's staff.

All proceedings are confidential until the commission makes a removal or public censure recommendation to the Supreme Court, which has final authority. Thereafter, the case becomes public.

Draper said "minor impingements upon good judicial decorum and deportment can be cured informally, since almost every judge is anxious to rectify them when he realizes some fair complaint has been made."

20th Annual Band Preview Is Friday

ON REVIEW — The Circleville Junior High School Band will combine with the Senior High Band beginning 7:30 p.m.

The 20th annual Circleville High School Band Preview hits the Tiger gridiron promptly at 7:30 p.m. Friday to inaugurate the 1972-73 season.

The combined seventh, eighth and ninth grade bands and senior high school bands number 450 strong, and all will perform at Friday's event, one of the big fund raising functions of the Circleville Band Boosters.

The Band Boosters raise funds for buying new uniforms, to pay the bus drivers for transporting musicians and instruments to and from events.

Each year $1,500 to $2,000 is earmarked for uniforms which are replaced about every 10 years. Cost of outfitting the senior high band runs in the neighborhood of $15,000.

THE Circleville High School band is rich in tradition. Organized in 1931 by C. F. Zaenglein, the first band had saxophones — 17 clarinets, nine saxophones, two basses, one baritone, nine trombones, 17 trumpets, six altos, five snare drums and one bass drum.

The first uniforms were given to the band by the Circleville Pumpkin Show Society. Zaenglein remained the band director until 1948 when Truman Eberly was hired as director. Eberly was succeeded in 1966 by George Marshall, who was in turn succeeded by William O'Neil in 1968.

The present director, Gary Dean, is a CHS alumnus and returned to his alma mater in 1970 after launching a successful career in Kentucky.

Under Dean's direction the band has done well in competition. At West Jefferson they were second in the class B division in 1970 and in 1971 scored 293 out of a possible 300 points to place third in the parade competition. This year they were one of the six top associated marching groups number 450 strong. The senior high band is directed by Gary Dean and the junior high band by Clifford Kerns, both of whom graduated from Circleville and are former band members.

Class AA bands in Ohio, competing at the Ohio State Fair.

In addition to performing at halftime of the CHS football games and marching in Pumpkin Show Parades, the band was invited to play in the Farewell Salute to Coney Island and was also asked to play at the opening of Kings Island Amusement park.

THE senior band has 128 playing bandmen, 20 marching Tigerettes, seven majorettes, seven color guards and two field commanders.

The eighth and ninth grade band has 150 members and the seventh grade band 135 members. Clifford Kerns is the director of the junior high bands.

Report Soviet Breakthrough In Fight Against Leukemia

WASHINGTON (AP) — American scientists say a reported Soviet breakthrough in leukemia research raises new hopes of finding a preventive vaccine and improved treatment for the disease.

The breakthrough, announced at a news conference Wednesday, comes at a time when scientists—especially in the United States—already are making significant progress in slowing down the development of all forms of cancer.

Soviet scientists have reported they have produced leukemia in monkeys and baboons after inoculating them with blood from human leukemia patients. The implication is that the Soviets might have succeeded in isolating the disease causing virus.

Dr. John B. Moloney of the National Cancer Institute said the Soviet report raises "new hope, absolutely" for preventing and stopping not only leukemia but also leukemia-like diseases and for cancers of the connective tissues.

The three classes of cancer together comprise 38,000 of the 640,000 new cases of cancer in the United States.

Twenty-five years ago, the average survival of leukemia victims was measured in weeks and months. Today, it is at least three to four years and a few patients have been known to live from 12 to 15 years or more.

Dr. C. Gordon Zubro of the National Cancer Institute said recently the most up-to-date evidence suggests that various combinations of chemicals can provide normal life expectancy for patients with such malignancies as acute leukemia, Hodgkins' disease and lymphoma.

He said combinations of drugs also have been successful in causing complete remissions—or temporary control of the symptoms—in growing numbers of patients among the 85 per cent cancer victims suffering from solid tumors like those of the breast and lung.

Lad Hospitalized After Accident

A Grove City youth is reported in "satisfactory" condition in Columbus Mercey Hospital today following a bike collision at 4:30 Wednesday afternoon on Route 104.

Fifteen-year-old John W. Myers II, Grove City, was taken to the hospital after his bicycle and a car operated by Linda K. Estep, 21, of Route 2, Ashville, collided head-on yesterday less than a mile and a half south of the Franklin-Pickaway County line.

Highway Patrolman J. R. Svetek reports that Mrs. Estep was headed south on the highway and attempted to pass another vehicle. While her car was left of the center line, she struck the northbound Myers bicycle head-on.

Both vehicles traveled into a ditch on the east side of the road. Myers was entangled in a farm fence.

Pd. Svetek cited Mrs. Estep for driving her automobile left of center.

The colorful "neckties" can be easily spotted from a distance. This is not the case with the more conventional method whereby small metal or plastic bands were attached to birds' legs.

ON REVIEW — The Circleville Junior High Band will combine with the Senior High Band beginning 7:30 p.m.

The 20th annual Circleville High School Band Preview hits the Tiger gridiron promptly at 7:30 p.m. Friday to inaugurate the 1972-73 season.

The combined seventh, eighth and ninth grade bands and senior high school bands number 450 strong, and all will perform at Friday's event, one of the big fund raising functions of the Circleville Band Boosters.

The Band Boosters raise funds for buying new uniforms, to pay the bus drivers for transporting musicians and instruments to and from events.

Each year $1,500 to $2,000 is earmarked for uniforms which are replaced about every 10 years. Cost of outfitting the senior high band runs in the neighborhood of $15,000.

THE Circleville High School band is rich in tradition. Organized in 1931 by C. F. Zaenglein, the first band had nine groups — 17 clarinets, nine saxophones, two basses, one baritone, nine trombones, 17 trumpets, six altos, five snare drums and one bass drum.

The first uniforms were given to the band by the Circleville Pumpkin Show Society. Zaenglein remained the band director until 1948 when Truman Eberly was hired as director. Eberly was succeeded in 1966 by George Marshall, who was in turn succeeded by William O'Neil in 1968.

The present director, Gary Dean, is a CHS alumnus and returned to his alma mater in 1970 after launching a successful career in Kentucky.

Under Dean's direction the band has done well in competition. At West Jefferson they were second in the class B division in 1970 and in 1971 scored 293 out of a possible 300 points to place third in the parade competition. This year they were one of the six top associated marching groups number 450 strong. The senior high band is directed by Gary Dean and the junior high band by Clifford Kerns, both of whom graduated from Circleville and are former band members.

Class AA bands in Ohio, competing at the Ohio State Fair.

In addition to performing at halftime of the CHS football games and marching in Pumpkin Show Parades, the band was invited to play in the Farewell Salute to Coney Island and was also asked to play at the opening of Kings Island Amusement park.

Report Soviet Breakthrough In Fight Against Leukemia

WASHINGTON (AP) — American scientists say a reported Soviet breakthrough in leukemia research raises new hopes of finding a preventive vaccine and improved treatment for the disease.

The breakthrough, announced at a news conference Wednesday, comes at a time when scientists—especially in the United States—already are making significant progress in slowing down the development of all forms of cancer.

Soviet scientists have reported they have produced leukemia in monkeys and baboons after inoculating them with blood from human leukemia patients. The implication is that the Soviets might have succeeded in isolating the disease causing virus.

Dr. John B. Mooney of the National Cancer Institute said the Soviet report raises "new hope, absolutely" for preventing and stopping not only leukemia but also leukemia-like diseases and for cancers of the connective tissues.

The three classes of cancer together comprise 38,000 of the 640,000 new cases of cancer in the United States.

Twenty-five years ago, the average survival of leukemia victims was measured in weeks and months. Today, it is at least three to four years and a few patients have been known to live from 12 to 15 years or more.

Dr. C. Gordon Zubro of the National Cancer Institute said recently the most up-to-date evidence suggests that various combinations of chemicals can provide normal life expectancy for patients with such malignancies as acute leukemia, Hodgkins' disease and lymphoma.

He said combinations of drugs also have been successful in causing complete remissions—or temporary control of the symptoms—in growing numbers of patients among the 85 per cent cancer victims suffering from solid tumors like those of the breast and lung.

Lad Hospitalized After Accident

A Grove City youth is reported in "satisfactory" condition in Columbus Mercy Hospital today following a bicycle collision at 4:30 Wednesday afternoon on Route 104.

Fifteen-year-old John W. Myers II, Grove City, was taken to the hospital after his bicycle and a car operated by Linda K. Estep, 21, of Route 2, Ashville, collided head-on yesterday less than a mile and a half south of the Franklin-Pickaway County line.

Highway Patrolman J. R. Svetek reports that Mrs. Estep was headed south on the highway and attempted to pass another vehicle. While her car was left of the center line, she struck the northbound Myers bicycle head-on.

Both vehicles traveled into a ditch on the east side of the road. Myers was entangled in a farm fence.

PD. Svetek cited Mrs. Estep for driving her automobile left of center.

Ducks Get New Rings

BERLIN (AP) — East Berlin bird researchers have started placing multi-colored plastic rings around the necks of wild ducks to keep track of their movements.

The colorful "neckties" can be easily spotted from a distance. This is not the case with the more conventional method whereby small metal or plastic bands were attached to birds' legs.

THE senior band has 128 playing bandmen, 20 marching Tigerettes, seven majorettes, seven color guards and two field commanders.

The eighth and ninth grade band has 150 members and the seventh grade band 135 members. Clifford Kerns is the director of the junior high bands.

KINGSTON resident Ted Van Horn underwent surgery today for a kidney transplant ... Ted, and his brother Phil, were admitted to University Hospital for the four to six hour operation this morning ... Phil was the kidney donor for his older brother.

Ted will be hospitalized for a while in room 987 ... Both young men can receive cards there, but Ted will only be allowed family members as visitors for a while.

Much of Ted's hospital expenses will be taken care of through his Army insurance, it is reported, and the Kidney Foundation will make it possible for the family to buy most of the medicine required at cost, cutting the price nearly in half.

The Kidney Foundation is still collecting Betty Crocker coupons which they plan to exchange to purchase machines to set up a clinic in this area and check school children for early signs of kidney problems ... A new collection point is the Senior Citizen Center, Lancaster Pike.

To date, the central Ohio organizations have purchased two hospital dialysis machines, placed at Riverside and University, and 15 home machines.

BEATRICE Moorehead, Pickaway County deputy registrar, celebrated a birthday today (we were polite and didn't ask for an accurate tally of the years) and was fêted by the best-ever "Lemon But Cake" by her employee, Frances Fry of Williamsport ... Reclaim Land

From Oil Well

Pollution

By ALY MAHMOUD

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The days of scratching a living from small sandy plots of land near an oasis in eastern Saudi Arabia are over for Ali Maatouk and 102 farmers in the area.

A government project has reclaimed 10,000 acres of land, enabling Maatouk and others to grow a variety of quality vegetables never before available locally in the markets of Dammam or Al Khobar.

Leafy green spinach, stalks of celery, red cabbage, parsley and squash are just a few of the 31 kinds of vegetables the farmers produce in commercial quantities.

When the project was getting started 10 years ago Maatouk worked three acres planted with alfalfa. Now he and his two sons earn a comfortable living from 20 acres that produce two or three crops of vegetables a year.

Maatouk has acquired a seeder, power sprayer, cultivating machine and a horse-drawn plow and is now thinking of producing honey for market from the 17 beehives he acquired to pollinate certain crops.

Saudi Ministry of Agriculture experts, aided by a team from the Arabian American Oil Co. (ARAMCO), conquered a common problem in Middle East farming — not drought but saline water.

Oil prospectors found well water at the same time they found oil. The farmer tries to use the water the same way he did spring water, by keeping it running.

But the saline well water evaporated under a hot Arabian sun and left a salt precipitate that ruined thousands of acres near the oasis.

When the program started in 1960, ministry experts drained the soil and began building 40 miles of drainage canals. That eventually restored 10,000 acres of land in the Qatif and Hofuf Oases.

Then they set about determining what were the best crops to grow and how they could be developed to a commercial level. Interested farmers received free seeds, other agricultural supplies and advice.

As new products began appearing on the market, the experts created a demand for them by incorporating their preparation into television cooking classes.

Now the agricultural experts visit cooperating farms once or twice a week to help farmers solve their problems, check on experiments with newer crops, fertilizers and insecticides.

STREET PROJECT — East Mill Street mothers sent 25 children on a day's outing to Kings Island Thursday to climax a summer program for their kids. The children,

25 in number, were mostly sons and daughters of E. Mill St. families, although six welfare children accompanied the group. The mothers planned bake sales and yard sales throughout the summer to provide funds for the kids' trip. Chaperones are Joyce Byrd, Betty Fausnaugh and Sandy Fausnaugh. Bus driver is James Lewis. Lewis said he hopes to be back in Circleville by 6 p.m. tonight. But the kids, with fun in their eyes as they wave goodbye to parents and friends, probably will succeed in detaining him at the Cincinnati area amusement park.

Campaign Finance Dispute Grows

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican charges of "devious cover-ups" have drawn Democratic claims of "nitpicking" in the latest round of accusations over presidential campaign money-handling under a new law.

While Democratic presidential nominee George S. McGovern's campaign has "attempted to hold its candidate out to the public as above reproach, his organization has in fact resorted to devious cover-ups in various fund raising activities," GOP National Chairman Robert J. Dole said Wednesday.

Dole called for a probe by the General Accounting Office—which the audit agency said is already under way. "I believe there is substantial evidence that the McGovern campaign apparatus has committed at least seven serious violations" of the new political finance law, Dole said in a letter to GAO.

A GAO official said, "We plan to give this the same type of treatment we gave the Republicans."

Frank Mankiewicz, McGovern's national political director, told reporters that GAO already had begun a "routine" audit of McGovern finances before Dole asked for it.

For Dole "to accuse the McGovern campaign of the kind of violations that are talked about in this letter," Mankiewicz said, "is somewhat like a man caught on the street after a bank robbery with the cash in a sack calling in the police to arrest a jaywalker he sees crossing the street. I don't think anybody is fooled by this."

Dole charged that the McGovern campaign received at least $10,000 from a London-based committee called "Americans for McGovern Abroad," which has not registered with the federal elections office. Mankiewicz said there is such a group, it did contribute $10,000, "and so far as I know it has not registered."

But, Mankiewicz said, there is "some doubt in the law as to whether foreign committees were required to file. We'll clear that up, and that committee will file very shortly."

On other matters, Dole said

there are reports that some tickets at prices of at least $2,000 for a Madison Square Garden rally, but the purchasers have not been individually identified.

Mankiewicz said the rally followed an initial filing period deadline, and "if there were such contributions" they could

Deed's Dairy Driver Guilty

Municipal Court Judge Sterling Lamb who found Reed guilty of the misdemeanor Thursday morning, deferred sentencing pending a review of his past driver's record.

Reed is alleged to have driven through a stop sign at the Ashville-Fairfield and Circleville-Winchestr Roads intersection near the Walnut School and hitting the Pennington auto with his two-ton ice cream delivery truck.

Uncrowded Badlands

WASHINGTON (AP) — Perhaps the Badlands National Monument has a bad name.

For some reason, it is one of the rare national parks or monuments that actually is undercrowded. In 1971, about a million and a half visitors toured the desolate no-man's land, but it could easily have handled twice that number.

Jews, Christians and Moslems alike accept the biblical Abraham as an exemplary model of the man of unswerving faith.

Reclaim Land From Oil Well Pollution

By ALY MAHMOUD

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The days of scratching a living from small sandy plots of land near an oasis in eastern Saudi Arabia are over for Ali Maatouk and 102 farmers in the area.

A government project has reclaimed 10,000 acres of land, enabling Maatouk and others to grow a variety of quality vegetables never before available locally in the markets of Dammam or Al Khobar.

Leafy green spinach, stalks of celery, red cabbage, parsley and squash are just a few of the 31 kinds of vegetables the farmers produce in commercial quantities.

When the project was getting started 10 years ago Maatouk worked three acres planted with alfalfa. Now he and his two sons earn a comfortable living from 20 acres that produce two or three crops of vegetables a year.

Maatouk has acquired a seeder, power sprayer, cultivating machine and a horse-drawn plow and is now thinking of producing honey for market from the 17 beehives he acquired to pollinate certain crops.

Saudi Ministry of Agriculture experts, aided by a team from the Arabian American Oil Co. (ARAMCO), conquered a common problem in Middle East farming — not drought but saline water.

Oil prospectors found well water at the same time they found oil. The farmer tries to use the water the same way he did spring water, by keeping it running.

But the saline well water evaporated under a hot Arabian sun and left a salt precipitate that ruined thousands of acres near the oasis.

When the program started in 1960, ministry experts drained the soil and began building 40 miles of drainage canals. That eventually restored 10,000 acres of land in the Qatif and Hofuf Oases.

Then they set about determining what were the best crops to grow and how they could be developed to a commercial level. Interested farmers received free seeds, other agricultural supplies and advice.

As new products began appearing on the market, the experts created a demand for them by incorporating their preparation into television cooking classes.

STREET PROJECT — East Mill Street mothers sent 25 children on a day's outing to Kings Island Thursday to climax a summer program for their kids. The children,

25 in number, were mostly sons and daughters of E. Mill St. families, although six welfare children accompanied the group. The mothers planned bake sales and yard sales throughout the summer to provide funds for the kids' trip. Chaperones are Joyce Byrd, Betty Fausnaugh and Sandy Fausnaugh. Bus driver is James Lewis. Lewis said he hopes to be back in Circleville by 6 p.m. tonight. But the kids, with fun in their eyes as they wave goodbye to parents and friends, probably will succeed in detaining him at the Cincinnati area amusement park.

Campaign Finance Dispute Grows

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican charges of "devious cover-ups" have drawn Democratic claims of "nitpicking" in the latest round of accusations over presidential campaign money-handling under a new law.

While Democratic presidential nominee George S. McGovern's campaign has "attempted to hold its candidate out to the public as above reproach, his organization has in fact resorted to devious cover-ups in various fund raising activities," GOP National Chairman Robert J. Dole said Wednesday.

Dole called for a probe by the General Accounting Office—which the audit agency said is already under way. "I believe there is substantial evidence that the McGovern campaign apparatus has committed at least seven serious violations" of the new political finance law, Dole said in a letter to GAO.

A GAO official said, "We plan to give this the same type of treatment we gave the Republicans."

Frank Mankiewicz, McGovern's national political director, told reporters that GAO already had begun a "routine" audit of McGovern finances before Dole asked for it.

For Dole "to accuse the McGovern campaign of the kind of violations that are talked about in this letter," Mankiewicz said, "is somewhat like a man caught on the street after a bank robbery with the cash in a sack calling in the police to arrest a jaywalker he sees crossing the street. I don't think anybody is fooled by this."

Dole charged that the McGovern campaign received at least $10,000 from a London-based committee called "Americans for McGovern Abroad," which has not registered with the federal elections office. Mankiewicz said there is such a group, it did contribute $10,000, "and so far as I know it has not registered."

But, Mankiewicz said, there is "some doubt in the law as to whether foreign committees were required to file. We'll clear that up, and that committee will file very shortly."

On other matters, Dole said

there are reports that some tickets at prices of at least $2,000 for a Madison Square Garden rally, but the purchasers have not been individually identified.

Mankiewicz said the rally followed an initial filing period deadline, and "if there were such contributions" they could be included in a later report.

Dole said the press reported Stewart Mott of New York contributed $377,500 to McGovern's campaign, but public disclosures report $38,000 in contributions and $160,000 in loans. Mankiewicz said the latest report was June 28, "and I am confident the report was accurate. He has made other contributions since and they will be fully reported when we make our next filing."

Mankiewicz also said that since the GAO found possible violations by President Nixon's campaign fund handlers, "it is not surprising that Sen. Dole would come up with six or seven suppositions and nit-picking charges with respect to the McGovern campaign."

Deed's Dairy Driver Guilty

Howard Reed, 51, Lancaster, deliveryman for Deeds Dairy, Lancaster, was found guilty of second degree manslaughter in the Aug. 7 traffic deaths of Paul Pennington, his wife Leona and their son John.

Municipal Court Judge Sterling Lamb who found Reed guilty of the misdemeanor Thursday morning, deferred sentencing pending a review of his past driver's record.

Reed is alleged to have driven through a stop sign at the Ashville-Fairfield and Circleville-Winchester Roads intersection near the Walnut School and hitting the Pennington auto with his two-ton ice cream delivery truck.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

That's One Way To End Argument

DEAR ABBY: Stevie and I went together for about four months, and he gave me his peace ring, which I wore all the time.

Last Friday we had a big fight, and I tried to give Stevie's peace ring back to him, but he refused to take it. I finally threw it at him.

He said he didn't want it, so I picked it up and stuck it in his pocket. That's when he SWALLOWED it!

I told my mother about it, and she said she didn't want me to ever go out with that lunatic Stevie again. Abby, I still care for him, and I'd like to back with him, but now my mother won't let me. Now I'm sorry I told my mother anything. What should I do?

LINDA

DEAR LINDA: Bide your time, Honey. Things have a way of working themselves out.

DEAR ABBY: Everybody thinks waitress work is a good deal because a girl doesn't need much education, little training, and if she's willing to work, she can rake in a lot of money. Well, I work for a place which employs about 160 waitresses, and what the customer does not know is this:

1. If a customer walks out without paying his check, the dish, she pays for it.

2. If he walks out WITH the check (all checks are numbered) it costs the waitress $10.

3. If a waitress breaks a dish, she pays for it.

4. If a waitress makes a mistake in addition (and under charge) she has to make up the difference.

5. If the waitress forgets to mark an item on the check no excuse is acceptable, she is fired.

6. If a night girl comes on the floor and finishes serving for a day girl, the night girl loses the tip.

Now, Dear Abby, what advice have you for a weary, underpaid girl who has to support herself as a waitress?

DEAR NO: Hustle your bustle to the nearest travel bureau, find the first plane, train, or bus or dogged out of that town, and take it!

DEAR ABBY: Naturally you won't print this, but I am going to write it anyway.

Every once in a while, in your column there's a reference to a "male chauvinist pig," and of course the remark always comes from a woman.

What a laugh! Ask any service station operator or a janitor who cleans both men's and women's rest rooms who the "pigs" are. They will tell you they are the women, beyond a question of a doubt. And women will call men pigs!

NO SYMPATHY IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

DEAR NO: I didn't have to ask. I've heard it for years.

Korean Talks Hold Hope For Unity

SEOUL (AP) — North and South Korean Red Cross officials expressed hope for early reunification of the divided peninsula during the opening ceremony in Pyongyang today of negotiations to end the separation of millions of families.

The meeting in Teadong Hall was broadcast to South Korea by a radio team that accompanied the delegates from Seoul.

The first session consisted of exchanges of greetings, confirmation of the agenda and pledges to negotiate in a spirit of reconciliation. The South Koreans were to attend cultural performances and sightsee before returning to Seoul Saturday. But the schedule calls for no working sessions until the North Koreans come to Seoul in two weeks, on Sept. 13.

In their speeches, both sides stressed their common background and aspirations rather than the ideological gap between the Communist North and the South, an ally of the United States.

The streets of Pyongyang were clean and uncongested even during the morning rush hours and the general public appeared quite indifferent to the talks, South Korean newsmen reported from the North Korean capital.

When the motorcade with the South Korean delegation arrived at a government guest house Tuesday afternoon, pedestrians paid virtually no attention to it. This was in sharp contrast to the sendoff the delegation received from tens of thousands of flag-waving South Koreans who lined the streets of Seoul and the highway leading to Panmunjom earlier Tuesday.

Drive-In Theater Sued For Damages

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—The Mayfield Road Drive-In Theater, Inc., in Geauga County was sued for $2.25 million in damages Tuesday for carbon monoxide injuries a man allegedly sustained while keeping his engine running to keep warm.

Demetrius Terentiuk, 20, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Serhij Terentiuk, also named the theater manager Peter Maisano Jr. and an unnamed projector operator in the suit.

USE THE CLASSIFIEDS

executive officer of Penn Central Transportation Co., said

Tuesday the railroad needs to eliminate 4,000 miles of track and 10,000 jobs to successfully reorganize from bankruptcy.

He told a seminar of the Ohio chapter of the American Society of Traffic and Transportation that 4,000 miles of track have been identified as "clear, undisputed losers which should be abandoned as soon as possible."

Moore said 80 per cent of Penn Central's freight business comes from 11,000 of the approximately 20,000 route miles and studies are in progress to reduce the rail system to a 11,000 or 15,000 mile "viable core."

So far, the railroad has applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission to abandon 2,145 miles of track and has won approval for 675 miles.

"We simply have too many people doing the same jobs, and their jobs are guaranteed by labor agreements and-or the after effects of antiquated state excess crew laws," Moore added.

He said Penn Central has reduced its work force by 13,300 to a total payroll of $2,500 since it entered reorganization, mainly through attrition of non-operating personnel.

He said Penn Central is now focusing on the operating crews which are "the most expensive part of our payroll costs."

Moore said the railroad could save about $150 million annually in labor costs through the gradual elimination by attrition of almost 10,000 unnecessary jobs in train and engine service.

"I expect to have this total down to 80,000 or less by the end of the year," Moore said. He called the reductions "drastic and vitally essential surgery."

Moore said the savings from staff cuts would "open the door to a revitalization of the railroad industry in the United States" by increasing industry productivity, reducing operating costs and leading to "a greatly improved competitive position" relative to other forms of transportation.

He concluded that labor unions must be convinced it is in their best long-term interests to reach "a reasonable permanent settlement" of what he termed "elephantine and ridiculous excess labor costs."

He concluded that labor unions must be convinced it is in their best long-term interests to reach "a reasonable permanent settlement" of what he termed "elephantine and ridiculous excess labor costs."

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

That's One Way To End Argument

DEAR ABBY: Stevie and I went together for about four months, and he gave me his peace ring, which I wore all the time.

Last Friday we had a big fight, and I tried to give Stevie's peace ring back to him, but he refused to take it. I finally threw it at him.

He said he didn't want it, so I picked it up and stuck it in his pocket. That's when he SWALLOWED IT!

I told my mother about it, and she said she didn't want me to ever go out with that lunatic Stevie again. Abby, I still care for him, and I'd like to back with him, but now my mother won't let me. Now I'm sorry I told my mother anything. What should I do?

LINDA
DEAR LINDA: Bide your time. Honey. Things have a way of working themselves out. DEAR ABBY: Everybody thinks waitress work is a good deal because a girl doesn't need much education, little training, and if she's willing to work, she can make a lot of money. Well, I work for a place which employs about 160 waitresses, and what the customer does not know is this:

1. If a customer walks out without paying his check, the dish, she pays for it.
2. If he walks out WITH the check (all checks are numbered) it costs the waitress $10.

3. If a waitress breaks a dish, she pays for it.

4. If a waitress makes a mistake in addition (and under charge) she has to make up the difference.

5. If the waitress forgets to mark an item on the check no excuse is acceptable, she is fired.

6. If a night girl comes on the floor and finishes serving for a day girl, the night girl loses the tip.

Now, Dear Abby, what advice have you for a weary, underpaid girl who has to support herself as a waitress?

NO UNION HERE
DEAR NO: Hustle your bustle to the nearest travel bureau, find the first plane, train, or bus or dogged out of that town, and take it!

DEAR ABBY: Naturally you won't print this, but I am going to write it anyway. Every once in a while, in your column there's a reference to a "male chauvinist pig," and of course the remark always comes from a woman.

What a laugh! Ask any service station operator or a janitor who cleans both men's and women's rest rooms who the "pigs" are. They will tell you they are the women, beyond a question of a doubt. And women will call men pigs!

NO SYMPATHY IN NEW HAMPSHIRE
DEAR NO: I didn't have to ask. I've heard it for years.

Penn Central Must Slash 10,000 Jobs, Chief Says

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—William H. Moore, president and chief executive officer of Penn Central Transportation Co., said Tuesday the railroad needs to eliminate 4,000 miles of track and 10,000 jobs to successfully reorganize from bankruptcy.

He told a seminar of the Ohio chapter of the American Society of Traffic and Transportation that 4,000 miles of track have been identified as "clear, undisputed losers which should be abandoned as soon as possible."

Moore said 80 per cent of Penn Central's freight business comes from 11,000 of the approximately 20,000 route miles and studies are in progress to reduce the rail system to a 11,000 or 15,000 mile "viable core."

So far, the railroad has applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission to abandon 2,145 miles of track and has won approval for 675 miles.

"We simply have too many people doing the same jobs, and their jobs are guaranteed by labor agreements and-or the after effects of antiquated state excess crew laws," Moore added.

He said Penn Central has reduced its work force by 13,300 to a total payroll of $2,500 since it entered reorganization, mainly through attrition of non-operating personnel.

He said Penn Central is now focusing on the operating crews which are "the most expensive part of our payroll costs."

Moore said the railroad could save about $150 million annually in labor costs through the gradual elimination by attrition of almost 10,000 unnecessary jobs in train and engine service.

"I expect to have this total down to 80,000 or less by the end of the year," Moore said. He called the reductions "drastic and vitally essential surgery."

Moore said the savings from staff cuts would "open the door to a revitalization of the railroad industry in the United States" by increasing industry productivity, reducing operating costs and leading to "a greatly improved competitive position" relative to other forms of transportation.

He concluded that labor unions must be convinced it is in their best long-term interests to reach "a reasonable permanent settlement" of what he termed "elephantine and ridiculous excess labor costs."

Korean Talks

Hold Hope

For Unity

SEOUL (AP) — North and South Korean Red Cross officials expressed hope for early reunification of the divided peninsula during the opening ceremony of negotiations to end the separation of millions of families.

The meeting in Teadong Hall was broadcast to South Korea by a radio team that accompanied the delegates from Seoul.

The first session consisted of exchanges of greetings, confirmation of the agenda and pledges to negotiate in a spirit of reconciliation. The South Koreans were to attend cultural performances and sightsee before returning to Seoul Saturday. But the schedule calls for no working sessions until the North Koreans come to Seoul in two weeks, on Sept. 13.

In their speeches, both sides stressed their common background and aspirations rather than the ideological gap between the Communist North and the South, an ally of the United States.

The streets of Pyongyang were clean and uncongested even during the morning rush hours and the general public appeared quite indifferent to the talks, South Korean newsmen reported from the North Korean capital.

When the motorcade with the South Korean delegation arrived at a government guest house Tuesday afternoon, pedestrians paid virtually no attention to it. This was in sharp contrast to the sendoff the delegation received from tens of thousands of flag-waving South Koreans who lined the streets of Seoul and the highway leading to Panmunjom earlier Tuesday.

Drive-In Theater Sued For Damages

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—The Mayfield Road Drive-In Theater, Inc., in Geauga County was sued for $2.25 million in damages Tuesday for carbon monoxide injuries a man allegedly sustained while keeping his engine running to keep warm.

Demetrius Terentiuk, 20, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Serhij Terentiuk, also named theater manager Peter Maisano Jr. and an unnamed projector operator in the suit.

Pickaway County received $161,123.91 in the second advance distribution of the state motor vehicle license tax revenues for 1972 according to a report from Joseph T. Ferguson, state auditor. It is one of three distributions scheduled for the license year running from April 15, 1972 to April 14, 1973.

Blame Job Losses On Pollution Fight

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—Citing the loss of 1,009 mining jobs in eight months, West Virginia Coal Association President Stephen Young Tuesday blamed "unreasonably strict" environmental regulations and called for governmental relief.

Young said other problems were involved in the job decline including safety legislation and labor difficulties and predicted "a dismal picture" for the coal industry for the next two or three years and "a questionable future beyond."

A Vertical Race

Elevators have succumbed to the hustle and dash of the space age. Workers in skyscrapers of many of the larger cities zoom to and from their offices — probably unaware of a speed race between elevator manufacturers.

For a quarter of a century the speed record was held by Westinghouse Corp. with its 1,400-foot-a-minute elevator in the 70-story RCA Building in New York's Rockefeller Center. In 1956, Otis Elevator Co. accepted the challenge by installing a "lift" with matching velocity in Chicago's Prudential Building.

In quick succession came a 1,500-foot-a-minute elevator in Wall Street's Chase Manhattan Building and a 1,700-foot-a-minute interoffice missile in the Pan-Am Building in Manhattan.

Office buildings seem to be the sole prospects for elevators patterned after expressways, perhaps on the theory that the 10-minute coffee break is timed portal to portal. In contrast, the average apartment house elevator purrs along at the quaint old speed of 300 feet per minute.

No elevator manufacturer is currently planning to break the sound barrier, but in this race the sky is the limit, and don't bet on that.

Positively Blah

A University of Tulsa associate professor has a theory about those Monday morning blues. Or any of the other blahs which strike people from time to time. It can all be blamed on the weather.

Dr. Earl A. Sargent has spent eight years studying the effects of weather on human behavior. His studies convince him there is a direct and sometimes dramatic effect. As evidence, he cites a European study which found accident rates rose 50 per cent immediately preceding the passage of a weather frontal system.

It is all because of positive ionization of the atmosphere, Dr. Sargent says, a condition which occurs when temperatures rise and relative humidity increases. That is why, he contends, violent crime statistics usually reach a peak during the hot summer months.

A similar condition can exist in crowded, stuffy rooms, causing people to become drowsy and inattentive. Positive ionization is an interesting theory, although suspicion lingers there is more to it than that when people become incoherent at cocktail parties or inattentive in the classroom.

Negotiation

By JEFFERY HART

MIAMI BEACH — There has been a good deal of adverse reflection upon the harmony of this convention, and certainly such harmony is less entertaining on TV than a bare-knuckled floor-fight over some dramatic issue. But this convention told us a great deal about the Nixon approach to politics, and in spite of the squealing of Pete McCloskey on the left and the defection of some on the right, the harmony on display here was much more the product of political art than of convention management.

Turn back for a moment to the year 1962. After his humiliating defeat in California, which seemed to end his political career, Richard Nixon took a position at the Wall Street law firm of Mudge Stern. But Nixon did not function there as a lawyer in the usual sense. He was not really a trial lawyer or an expert — like John Mitchell, for example — on one or another aspect of the law. What Nixon proved to be was an expert negotiator. He had the gift of finding common support Nixon are cynical. Far ground between contending parties and convincing them that it was better to settle than fight it out in court.

Looking at the Republican Party assembled here in Miami one saw again the work of the expert negotiator. Of course, some clients simply will not settle. Pete McCloskey was told, in effect, get yourself another lawyer. The defecting Republican rightists were told: Okay, go ahead and sue.

But most Republicans chose to settle — from Jacob Javits on the left to his mortal foes on the right, the New York Conservative Party; from Brooke and Percy and Mathias on the liberal side to Jim Bickley, Reagan and Goldwater on the conservative, National Review has endorsed Nixon, but so has the liberal Ripon Society.

If Nixon had done nothing else, Barry Goldwater told the convention on Monday night, than check the liberal tendency of the Supreme Court, Nixon would get Goldwater's vote. And there was Ronald Reagan, praising Nixon for the practical idealism of his international diplomacy. Yet it is no secret that both Goldwater and Reagan have their doubts about SALT, about price controls, and about the FAP. Likewise, it is no secret that Jacob Javits dislikes the Nixon approach to Vietnam, to the court and to busing. But Javits is won by SALT, by the rapprochement with China, and by Nixon's solid standing with the business community.

Now the point is not that all these erstwhile rivals who now in the international arena, both Peking and Moscow have been subjected to the same Nixon treatment, though North Vietnam continues to hold out as a kind of fractious lieutenant.

It is an old theory in American politics, and one often noted by Nixon himself, that if you can bridge the contradictions in your own party you are on the way to bridging them in the country. And it is worth noting that Franklin D. Roosevelt was the last great political negotiator to bring into balance such diverse interests as Nixon is dealing with. On Tuesday, Governor Nelson Rockefeller placed Nixon's name in nomination, and this was seconded by Senator James Buckley. Simultaneously, Nixon's lead in the polls recalled the Rooseveltian bulge of 1936.

Now the point is not that all these erstwhile rivals who now

Horoscope Forecast

By Carroll Righter

FRIDAY'S HOROSCOPE
GENERAL TENDENCIES:
The early morning finds you able to work out some problems to your satisfaction by utilizing to advantage your logical reasoning powers, but take no chances the rest of the day and evening and think out the best way to solve problems through a careful and cautious approach. Keep calm.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19)
You are able to persuade others to carry through with your own ideas in a.m., but after lunch it is just the opposite with bigwigs, so carry through then as they prefer. Give earnest encouragement to the one you love. Get fine results.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20)
You have to handle material affairs at home very carefully today and tonight. You are able to solve all the important financial matters through perseverance. Show others you are not easily thwarted in your efforts.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)
Some letter you receive in a.m. can serve as a guidepost for the days ahead, but after lunch you have to handle affairs without undue impatience. Don't run around socially without some definite purpose in mind.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21)
You have to use common sense where those secret affairs are concerned in a.m., then study whatever comes up very carefully, but do not reach definite decisions yet. Bide for time with those who apply pressure on you.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)
Quietly state your aims with a good friend, but do not pressure and you get the cooperation you want and need. You have to use more patience if you are to gain vital desires. Good friends are most important to you now.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)
Make certain you do not take any undue risks so you do not jeopardize either reputation or credit or both. Get your bills paid and stop using excuses. Plan more time for the one you love in p.m.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)
A good friend can be of assistance to you in gaining the aims you have in mind. Do the studying that will lift your thinking. Diplomatically discourage a glamorous, especially if you are married.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)
A higher-up can give you the right answer to some problem you have, but think the questions over carefully tonight before acting in the morning. Keep busy a routines. Some light recreation is fine tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)
If you do not have the right understanding with an important associate, now is the time to get it. You had better do something wise about the problem that is pressing. Procrastinating only makes it worse.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)
You want to delve right into all that work but it would be well first to check with higher-ups and co-workers so that it is done to the satisfaction of all concerned. Please an attachment by doing what is wanted of you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)
If you take an associate with you, you can have the delightful time at recreations you want. First put particular effort on important work you have to do. Get that project on the road intelligently.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)
If you have to go out to business, plan how to improve conditions at home, otherwise center your energies on that exclusively during day. A different approach to a old problem sees it nicely solved.

Show you are a clever person. IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those almost neurotic young people who early needs the spiritual training and the gentle discipline that will mold him nature into a fine and stalwart young lad or lass, or else your interesting son, daughter becomes the proverbial rolling stone that gathers little moss. Teach early to complete what has once been started. The profession should be one where logical thinking is the first requirement. Give sports that are healthful. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

by LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

During my adolescence I suffered with strep throat every winter. A doctor suggested the removal of my tonsils, but for some reason or other, it was not done.

Now, in my early twenties, I am disturbed by a fluttering sensation in my heart. I realize that worrying is the worst possible reaction.

Is there some test that can determine whether my heart has been damaged because of these repeated attacks of strep throat.

Mr. X, Fla.

Dear Mr. X: (Apparently, you forgot to sign your name.)

Your concern about the strange, fluttering sensation is understandable. The condition, however, is a common one, and rarely ever indicates a serious, underlying heart condition.

For many years, there was an exaggeration of the relationship between strep throats and heart and kidney infections. Antibiotics have reduced the possibility of serious complications resulting from strep throat and tonsillitis. There are many simple tests, including electrocardiograms, which can assure you that you have no heart condition and thus no cause for concern.

At your young age, you have arrived at a very mature conclusion when you say that worrying is the "worst possible reaction."

I recently found out that I have a vaginal infection called trichomonas.

I have two daughters, 12 and 8. Can this infection be transmitted to them?

Mrs. A.J., Ohio

Dear Mrs. J.: Trichomonas vaginalis is a common non-venereal infection that is more annoying than serious. Many excellent drugs are now used to control and cure this condition.

It is caused by a protozoan organism, trichomonas vaginalis. Children, too, can have this.

Rigid rules of cleanliness must be followed in the home to be sure that it is not passed from one to another. Individual towels and bathing precautions are essential.

It is not commonly realized that husbands may harbor the protozoa on their skin and continue to reinfect their wives. Vaginal and skin smears can readily show the presence of the condition.

When a lung is removed by surgery, what fills the empty space that is left?

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

LONDON (AP) — British business is only months away from its best chance for booming profits since World War II entry into the European Common Market. But the immediate outlook remains grim.

On Jan. 1 this country will take into the world's richest trading club some of the worst economic credentials in Europe — near stagnant growth, record strike losses, an unstable currency, its highest unemployment since the 1930s and rampant inflation.

Opportunities abound as Britain's nearest and best customers progressively take down tariff barriers during a planned transition period. Britain's present home market of 55 million people will be replaced by 300 million Europeans in the expanded 10-nation community.

By some forecasts here, removal of the tariff walls will boost British trade by over $700 million a year, more than enough to meet higher food prices and other costs of joining Europe.

But entry is a double-edged sword. European members will be free to outsell the British here if they can. Under the present tariff system their sales to Britain are already 30 per cent higher than British sales to the Common Market countries.

Prime Minister Edward Heath's Conservative government won office in June 1970 promising to put the economy right. It still has a long way to go.

For British businesses, strikes remain a crucial problem. The country lost more than 13 million man-days of work last year because of stoppages, a record since the 1926 general strike.

Heath made a controversial strike-control law his top priority in domestic legislation, despite total opposition from the trade unions. The law, enacted this year, failed to prevent crippling strikes and may have aggravated them.

Meanwhile, industrial troubles and trade losses forced Britain to let the pound float down in international currency markets since June, outside fixed exchange rates. The government the removal of a lung, the diaphragm elevates itself to reduce the empty space. There is also scar tissue to help fill the void.

The chest wall itself may also become moderately depressed. The result is that the empty space, after a year, virtually does not exist.

ernment refuses to name a date for restabilizing the pound. This could help in the common market because the cheaper pound reduces British export prices.

The British press tended to blame the float on foreign speculators losing confidence in Britain. Foreigners have lost faith in this country before, among others.

According To Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Neither the prospect of heaven nor the terrors of hell greatly concern my mother, who will be 85 years old next month and still has the keenest mind on her block.

She tides herself against the onset of eternity by going about the daily small tasks of living — as usual.

In fact, "living — as usual" wouldn't be a bad summary of the life of quiet distinction Margaret Gavaghan Boyle has led since she landed on American shores at 17, fresh from a farm in County Mayo, Ireland.

"I've never done a bad thing in this world, so why should I fret about anything that might happen in the next world, if there is one?" she asked. "Anyway, I doubt if there will be anything worse — or much better, for that matter — than what I've already seen. Everybody gets a good taste of both heaven and hell on earth."

It takes a person of inordinate vanity or innocent and unselfconscious grace to say that in nearly 85 years of human life she never did a really bad thing. In Mrs. Margaret Boyle's case, it isn't vanity. It's a simple statement of truth, to which anyone who knows her would testify.

I have become increasingly aware over the years of what a privilege it is to have such a profound and artless a philosopher for a mother. The two or three visits I make her each year are my pilgrimages to mecca. I hold her almost as much in awe as I do in love.

Wisdom doesn't need a trumpet or a vast amphitheater. My mother has always been an oracle of the living room, her audience her family. Self-educated by thought and observation, her windows to the world have been the windows of her home and her daily newspaper. The Kansas City Star and Times.

She still lives, as she has for more than a quarter of a century, with my sister Dolores and her husband, Don Newton, a paint contractor who has been chronic.

during the dark days of the blitz for example, and been proven wrong.

The more important question is whether the British are losing confidence in themselves to solve a series of implacable problems, including strikes and the trouble in northern Ireland, among others.

to her more like a son than a son-in-law.

"It's high time I moved into an old folks' home," she says. "There you can just lie down in bed and people come and wait on you until you die."

"No Mama, you'd be dead in less than two weeks if you ever went into an old folks' home," a member of the family objects.

"Less than a week probably," agrees Mother placidly. "But that might be better for everybody."

Then she listens willingly as everyone assures her that she is still the keystone of the family, and that without her it simply would disintegrate and drift apart.

"I'm simply wearing out all over, just like the old one hoss shay," she said. "Now I simply live for each day as it comes."

Actually, Mother is in no hurry to be gone. Her curiosity is as sharp as ever, she can still stump out to the kitchen on a cane and get the evening meal started, and she enjoys the neighborhood gossip and her morning battle to keep her fiercely protective dog, Prince, from consuming the postman. Her blood pressure and a mild case of diabetes are under control, her rheumatism — she thinks it more dignified to call it arthritis now — no worse than 20 years ago.

She still pities young people because she thinks it is harder for them to feel secure now than it was for her when she was a young mother raising five children in a strange and sometimes terrifying land. But a touch of acerbity is creeping into her attitude toward the human race as a whole.

"People are all getting chronic today," she volunteered the other day.

"What do you mean by chronic, Mother?"

"Well, the more they get, the more they want," said Mama, "and the more they get what they want, the more dissatisfied they are with it."

"That's what I call being chronic."

A Vertical Race

Elevators have succumbed to the hustle and dash of the space age. Workers in skyscrapers of many of the larger cities zoom to and from their offices — probably unaware of a speed race between elevator manufacturers.

For a quarter of a century the speed record was held by Westinghouse Corp. with its 1,400-foot-a-minute elevator in the 70-story RCA Building in New York's Rockefeller Center. In 1956, Otis Elevator Co. accepted the challenge by installing a "lift" with matching velocity in Chicago's Prudential Building.

In quick succession acme a 1,500-foot-a-minute elevator in Wall Street's Chase Manhattan Building and a 1,700-foot-a-minute interoffice missile in the Pan-Am Building in Manhattan.

Office buildings seem to be the sole prospects for elevators patterned after expressways, perhaps on the theory that the 10-minute coffee break is timed portal to portal. In contrast, the average apartment house elevator purrs along at the quaint old speed of 300 feet per minute.

No elevator manufacturer is currently planning to break the sound barrier, but in this race the sky is the limit, and don't bet on that.

Positively Blah

A University of Tulsa associate professor has a theory about those Monday morning blues. Or any of the other blahs which strike people from time to time. It can all be blamed on the weather.

Dr. Earl A. Sargent has spent eight years studying the effects of weather on human behavior. His studies convince him there is a direct and sometimes dramatic effect. As evidence, he cites a European study which found accident rates rose 50 per cent immediately preceding the passage of a weather frontal system.

It is all because of positive ionization of the atmosphere, Dr. Sargent says, a condition which occurs when temperatures rise and relative humidity increases. That is why, he contends, violent crime statistics usually reach a peak during the hot summer months.

A similar condition can exist in crowded, stuffy rooms, causing people to become drowsy and inattentive. Positive ionization is an interesting theory, although suspicion lingers there is more to it than that when people become incoherent at cocktail parties or inattentive in the classroom.

Negotiation

By JEFFERY HART

MIAMI BEACH — There has been a good deal of adverse reflection upon the harmony of this convention, and certainly such harmony is less entertaining on TV than a bare-knuckled floor-fight over some dramatic issue. But this convention told us a great deal about the Nixon approach to politics, and in spite of the squelching of Pete McCloskey on the left and the defection of some on the right, the harmony on display here was much more the product of political art than of convention management.

Turn back for a moment to the year 1962. After his humiliating defeat in California, which seemed to end his political career, Richard Nixon took a position at the Wall Street law firm of Mudge Stern. But Nixon did not function there as a lawyer in the usual sense. He was not really a trial lawyer or an expert — like John Mitchell, for example — on one or another aspect of the law. What Nixon proved to be was an expert negotiator. He had the gift of finding common support between contending parties and convincing them that it was better to settle than fight it out in court.

Looking at the Republican Party assembled here in Miami one saw again the work of the expert negotiator. Of course, some clients simply will not settle. Pete McCloskey was told, in effect, get yourself another lawyer. The defecting Republican rightists were told: Okay, go ahead and sue.

But most Republicans chose to settle — from Jacob Javits on the left to his mortal foe on the right, the New York Conservative Party; from Brooke and Percy and Mathias on the liberal side to Jim Bickley, Reagan and Goldwater on the conservative, National Review has endorsed Nixon, but so has the liberal Ripon Society.

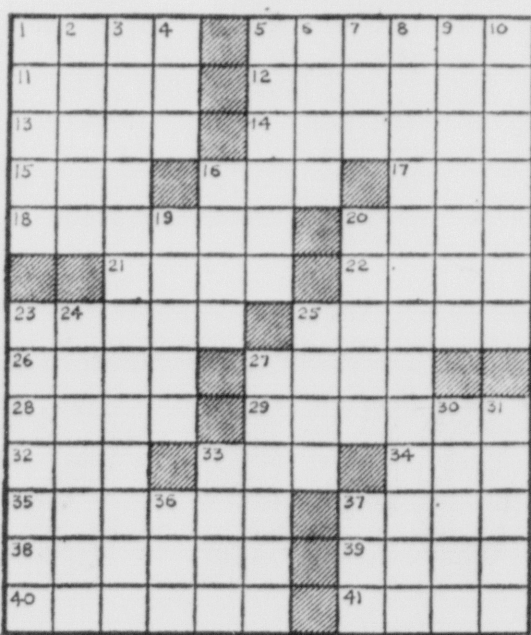

If Nixon had done nothing else, Barry Goldwater told the convention on Monday night, than check the liberal tendency of the Supreme Court, Nixon would get Goldwater's vote. And there was Ronald Reagan, praising Nixon for the practical idealism of his international diplomacy. Yet it is no secret that both Goldwater and Reagan have their doubts about SALT, about price controls, and about the FAP. Likewise, it is no secret that Jacob Javits dislikes the Nixon approach to Vietnam, to the court and to busing. But Javits is won by SALT, by the rapprochement with China, and by Nixon's solid standing with the business community.

Now the point is not that all these erstwhile rivals who now

Horoscope Forecast

FRIDAY'S HOROSCOPE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early morning finds you able to work out some problems to your satisfaction by utilizing to advantage your logical reasoning powers, but take no chances the rest of the day and evening and think out the best way to solve problems through a careful and cautious approach. Keep calm.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You are able to persuade others to carry through with your own ideas in a.m., but after lunch it is just the opposite with bigwigs, so carry through then as they prefer. Give earnest encouragement to the one you love. Get fine results.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have to handle material affairs at home very carefully today and tonight. You are able to solve all the important financial matters through perseverance. Show others you are not easily thwarted in your efforts.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Some letter you receive in a.m. can serve as a guidepost for the days ahead, but after lunch you have to handle affairs without undue impatience. Don't run around socially without some definite purpose in mind.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have to use common sense where those secret affairs are concerned in a.m., then study whatever comes up very carefully, but do not reach definite decisions yet. Bide for time with those you apply pressure on.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Quietly state your aims with a good friend, but do not pressure and you get the cooperation you want and need. You have to use more patience if you are to gain vital desires. Good friends are most important to you now.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make certain you do not take any undue risks so you do not jeopardize either reputation or credit or both. Get your bills paid and stop using excuses. Plan more time for the one you love in p.m.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good friend can be of assistance to you in gaining the aims you have in mind. Do the studying that will lift your thinking. Diplomatically discourage a glamorous, especially if you are married.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A higher-up can give you the right answer to some problem you have, but think the questions over carefully tonight before acting in the morning. Keep busy a routine. Some light recreation is fine tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you do not have the right understanding with an important associate, now is the time to get it. You had better do something wise about the problem that is pressing. Procrastinating only makes it worse.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You want to delve right into all that work but it would be well first to check with higher-ups and co-workers so that it is done to the satisfaction of all concerned. Please an attachment by doing what is wanted of you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you take an associate with you, you can have the delightful time at recreations you want. First put particular effort on important work you have to do. Get that project on the road intelligently.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those almost neurotic young people who early needs the spiritual training and the gentle discipline that will mold him nature into a fine and stalwart young lad or lass, or else your interesting son, daughter becomes the proverbial rolling stone that gathers little moss. Teach early to complete what has once been started. The profession should be one where logical thinking is the first requirement. Give sports that are healthful.

During my adolescence I suffered with strep throat every winter. A doctor suggested the removal of my tonsils, but for some reason or other, it was not done.

Now, in my early twenties, I am disturbed by a fluttering sensation in my heart. I realize that worrying is the worst possible reaction.

Is there some test that can determine whether my heart has been damaged because of these repeated attacks of strep throat.

Dear Mr. X: (Apparently, you forgot to sign your name.)

Your concern about the strange, fluttering sensation is understandable. The condition, however, is a common one, and rarely ever indicates a serious, underlying heart condition.

For many years, there was an exaggeration of the relationship between strep throats and heart and kidney infections. Antibiotics have reduced the possibility of serious complications resulting from strep throat and tonsillitis. There are many simple tests, including electrocardiograms, which can assure you that you have no heart condition and thus no cause for concern.

At your young age, you have arrived at a very mature conclusion when you say that worrying is the "worst possible reaction."

Dear Mrs. J.: Trichomonas vaginalis is a common non-venerical infection that is more annoying than serious. Many excellent drugs are now used to control and cure this condition.

It is caused by a protozoa organism, trichomonas vaginalis. Children, too, can have this.

Rigid rules of cleanliness must be followed in the home to be sure that it is not passed from one to another. Individual towels and bathing precautions are essential.

1962 Williamsport-Atlanta Grads Share Old Memories

A banquet Saturday celebrated the 10th anniversary of the graduation of Williamsport-Atlanta Class of 1962.

A social hour preceded the 8 p.m. dinner at the L-K Restaurant. Members and guests recalled their high school years looking at old photographs, annuals and class mementoes.

Fourteen of the class of 27 graduates and their guests were seated at tables decorated in the school colors of blue and gold with a centerpiece of blue and gold carnations.

Planning committee for the event was Ruth Barnes Wilson, Pat Kempton Pond, Sandy Sollars Tarbill, and Nancy Puffinbarger Weller.

Pat Pond welcomed all present and Ruth Wilson gave the invocation. After dinner, a short meeting was held with Nancy Weller giving the class history, noting that all 27 members were still living.

Sandy Tarbill gave the treasurer's report and Ruth Wilson conducted a short game. Graduates then introduced themselves and their guests and gave a short resume of their activities since graduation.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Reeser

Steubenville 'Puppet Man' Has Raggedy Ann, Rudolph

CRUISE — A weekend cruise to Nassau on board the M-S Sunward of Norwegian Caribbean Lines was part of a recent Florida vacation for Jim and Sharren Rathburn of Ashville.

Couple To Celebrate 60th Wedding Anniversary

MR. AND MRS. D. A. KIRKPATRICK

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Kirkpatrick of Neudings Trailer Court will observe their 60th wedding anniversary Sunday.

Marion Marlowe Robbed Of Gems

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Actress Marion Marlowe, in Dayton for the Kenley Players musical production of "Music in the Air," told police Wednesday she'd been robbed for an estimated $25,000 worth of jewelry.

The gems — mostly diamond earrings, bracelets and other items — were taken sometime between Sunday night when she packed them in a bag in Warren, Ohio, and Tuesday when she found they were missing.

They were married in Edwardsville, Ill., Sept. 3, 1912.

They are the parents of five children, Russell of Arlington, Tex.; Mary of Williamsport, Pa.; David of Blue Ridge, Ga.; Kenneth of Marysville; and Harold of Fairfax, Wis. They also have 21 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirkpatrick plan to spend a quiet day at their home as they both have just returned home from a 2-month stay in the hospital.

A can of whoe-kerne corn from the pantryshelf makes a good salad. Mix the corn with diced celery and green pepper; season with minced onion and moisten with French dressing.

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio (AP)—Everybody knows Raggedy Ann and Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer. Meet their agent—George Creagan of Steubenville.

Creagan owns the display, animation and puppet theater rights to both of these fantasy personalities. Their show business future is in his hands.

It's just a small part of a business that brings Creagan $500,000 every year. He's a puppet man. At his downtown Steubenville shop, Creagan creates puppets and arranges shows and displays to be sold to department stores around the country.

His work has graced the display windows of Saks Fifth Avenue in New York, Hornes of Pittsburgh and other stores in Baltimore, St. Louis, Montreal and around the country.

Between shows, Creagan finds time to teach a puppetry course at the College of Steubenville, record an occasional song to be used in his shows and help raise his four children.

He's also managed to write a book—"Hand Puppetry"—and arrange for a television appearance on the old Ed Sullivan show.

"We're working now on a presentation for the National Endowment for the Arts and Humanities in Washington. We hope this organization will utilize puppets to dramatize opera as part of its educational program," Creagan said.

Creagan got into the puppet business back in the 1950s when he was in Germany with the Air Force.

"They gave me the job of producing a children's program for TV. I created a weekly show using puppets. It ran for three years—1957 to 1959," he said.

Now Creagan, who started out wanting to be an opera tenor and once cut a record, employs as many as 40 to 50 persons in peak seasons.

"We offer the puppet show and surround it with display booths that carry out the theme of the season. This is particularly successful in the malls and shopping centers," Creagan said.

How does a Steubenville, Ohio, puppeteer get the rights to a big-time star like "Raggedy Ann?" He asks for them. "I found out no one had them. Fortunately, we got them."

Doctors Challenge Finding Vasectomies Dangerous

WASHINGTON (AP) — A claim by a New York pathologist that the birth-control vasectomy operation can cause permanent sterility and other health problems has been challenged by two doctors who specialize in the operation.

Dr. John Bernard Henry of Syracuse, N.Y., told a meeting here Tuesday that preliminary studies suggest that vasectomies can increase chances of contracting diseases such as multiple sclerosis and rheumatoid arthritis.

But Dr. Robert S. Gould of Wellesley, Mass., said in response to Henry's report that "It has not been our experience in the many thousands of vasectomies we have performed, nor has it been the experience nationwide, that any clinical illness follows vasectomy."

Dr. Gould is a urologist and medical director of National Vasectomy Services in Cleveland and Cincinnati.

Also questioning the Henry report was Dr. Fletcher Derrick, chief urologist at George Washington University Hospital and a specialist in vasectomies. He said the evidence is "too circumstantial to allow relating any disease to vasectomies," and also for permanent sterility.

He said there have been occasional cases—perhaps as few as two out of a million vasectomies—where patients later "show some sort of illness such as arthritis, thromboembolic (blood-clotting) or abscess."

Dr. Henry, in his presentation before the International Transfusion Congress sponsored by the American Association of Blood Banks, cautioned that his findings were preliminary and inconclusive, and said he hoped it would not end vasectomy operations. He also urged additional study.

The vasectomy operation is a simple surgery in which the two tiny ducts that carry the male spermatozoa are closed off to cause temporary sterility.

High Winds, Rain Pound Upper U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
High wind and rain hit the north-central states today as cooler weather dipped toward the midcontinent.

A tornado was sighted near White Earth, Minn., 50 miles southwest of Bemidji at midnight.

Fargo, N.D., soaked up two-thirds of an inch of rain and wind gusts over 40 miles per hour lashed a few places in the eastern Dakotas.

The storm activity over the middle and upper Mississippi Valley was triggered by the clash of moist Gulf air hitting a vigorous cold front lying across the eastern Dakotas.

Showers and thunderstorms also peppered areas from Nevada to Montana.

Fair and cool weather covered the Northeast and warm and muggy conditions hung to the Midwest and South.

Tropical storm Gwen, off the coast of Lower California, lost her punch. Gwen veered away from the West Coast Wednesday, but not before pushing 18-foot-high waves onto beaches in the southern part of the state.

94 U.S. Airmen Lost Since March Offensive Began

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command reported Wednesday that 94 American airmen have been lost in North Vietnam since the start of the Communist offensive last March 30 that was met by sharp escalation of the U.S. air war against the North.

The toll increased to 94 with the delayed announcement that three fliers and two F4 Phantom-2s were lost last Saturday and Sunday. One man, Marine 1st Lt. Darrel Borders, 33, of Herrin, Ill., was rescued.

A total of 84 American jets have been downed in North Vietnam since March 30, the U.S. Command said.

Hanoi Radio has announced the names of more than 20 of the fliers who it said were captured.

Cholera Warning

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The chief of Ohio's animal industry has pronounced the state "in excellent shape" with respect to recent hog cholera outbreaks but warned the picture could change.

"We're keeping up the watch," said Dr. Harry Goldstein. "But it's like surveillance. We don't know of a single case. We're cholera free."

But Goldstein warned that the disease could jump into unaffected herds.

Surveillance continued on farms near two farms where 648 hogs, worth nearly $20,000 had to be slaughtered and buried because they had the disease.

The hogs were brought in from Kentucky, where 29,000 animals have either caught cholera or are threatened by it.

Social Security Answers

Q. I'm starting my own business and my wife will be working as my employee. If I pay her a salary, are her earnings covered under social security?

A. No. This is considered family employment and is not covered by social security, unless the business is a corporation or a partnership. The same rule applies where children under 21 work for a parent.

Q. When I started getting social security checks in January, I estimated my earnings at $2,500 for 1972. However, I've just learned that I'll be laid off next month and won't make $1,680 for this year. Should I notify social security of the change in my estimated earnings?

A. Yes. Notify your social security office right away about the change in your work and estimated earnings. You'll be able to get social security payments for all months this year since your earnings will be less than $1,680.

Q. I was told to apply for social security payments 2 or 3 months before I retire, but I wrote to my home town several weeks ago for my birth certificate and haven't received it yet. Should I wait until it should I wait until it comes before I apply?

A. No. Apply for payments without it. It won't be possible to process your claim until we do receive your birth record, so you should write to your home town again to speed up handling of your claim.

Q. I'm a 52-year-old widow getting a monthly social security check for myself and my son, who's now 17. He plans to enlist in the Army. Should I report this to social security?

A. Yes. Since you are receiving a payment because you have a child under 18 in your care, your payment will stop when your son enters the Army. Your son's checks may also stop when he enters the Army, depending on when he enters the Army and his estimated earnings for the year. You should notify your social security office as soon as you know the date your son will enter the Army.

Q. I became disabled several years ago, but I did not apply for social security benefits at that time. Could I file for disability benefits now?

A. Yes. Regardless of when you became disabled, you can apply for benefits at any time. However, if retroactive benefits are payable they may be paid only for the 12 months before the date of application.

The other Phantom, a Navy plane, was downed Sunday by a surface-to-air missile 24 miles northwest of Thanh Hoa.

The U.S. Command also announced that three American advisers were among those wounded Tuesday when North Vietnamese gunners fired a total of 1,200 artillery and mortar shells into government positions in and around Quang Tri.

A series of small shelling attacks was reported in the Saigon region. Highway 1 about 25 miles east of the capital was reopened after the Viet Cong blocked traffic with dirt barricades that were booby-trapped.

Government militiamen reported heavy fighting 35 miles northwest of Saigon, with the South Vietnamese reporting 42 enemy and 11 militiamen killed and 22 militiamen wounded.

Nun Scores Vote Upset In Georgia

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A youthful Georgia state legislator has won an upset over the appointed successor to the late Sen. Richard B. Russell in a runoff election for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

In neighboring South Carolina's Primary Tuesday, Democrats chose a scholarly state senator to run against incumbent Republican Sen. Strom Thurmond and forced veteran Rep. John L. McMillan into a runoff.

Georgia state Rep. Sam Nun, 33, rode a tide of rural and urban votes to claim the nomination from Sen. David Gambrell. He will face GOP Rep. Fletcher Thompson in the Nov. 7 general election.

2,000 Chess Buffs Play Masters

CHICAGO (AP) — More than 2,000 persons put up with near 90-degree heat in Civic Center Plaza here to match wits with masters from the Chicago

Chess Club. Few were successful. The three winning "amateurs," however, were typical of the general quality of play that was even more surprising than the large turnout Wednesday.

The plaza's large Picasso sculpture had seldom looked down upon such a hushed crowd. Most of the noise came from usual downtown traffic in a hurry to get to the next stop light, church bells tolling the hour, the bustle of noon hour crowds — and the hawking over a loudspeaker system by Richard Verber, a round chess master who helped organize the event.

But where the activity occurred, on 200 chess boards opened on tables arranged in rectangles, there was a general calm.

The masters moved between the tables, playing as many as 20 games at a time. The challengers were seated, plotting their moves, receiving occasional suggestions from those standing behind them waiting to play next.

"It was a matter of our playing a simultaneous game against a well thought out game," said Tim Redman, who, at 22, is recognized an expert by the U.S. Chess Federation.

Redman said he faced about 50 opponents within six hours. He was among the chess club's group who lost to one of three persons who won a McGovern-Nixon chess set sculptured by Alexander Silveri, retired Austrian professor of art.

"I blundered. That's how you always lose," Redman said. "He (his opponent) got the advantage. I tried to trap him and failed."

The 16 masters and experts who played from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. were surprised, they said, not so much at the numbers of people, but the quality of play.

"Usually, in a simultaneous game you can expect some pushovers," Redman said. "I had no easy games."

"We had the best chess players in the area out there today," Verber said. "They came to play. Before we even had our signs up to attract passersby, there must have been 900 people waiting."

Verber, who said the surging interest in chess is certainly due to the current chess championship match in Iceland between American challenger Bobby Fischer and Russia's Boris Spassky, said he expected about 2,000 games to be played. But he estimated near the day's end that as many as 3,000 were played and that hundreds of persons waited up to three hours to compete.

2,000 Chess Buffs Play Masters

CHICAGO (AP) — More than 2,000 persons put up with near 90-degree heat in Civic Center Plaza here to match wits with masters from the Chicago

Chess Club. Few were successful. The three winning "amateurs," however, were typical of the general quality of play that was even more surprising than the large turnout Wednesday.

The plaza's large Picasso sculpture had seldom looked down upon such a hushed crowd. Most of the noise came from usual downtown traffic in a hurry to get to the next stop light, church bells tolling the hour, the bustle of noon hour crowds — and the hawking over a loudspeaker system by Richard Verber, a round chess master who helped organize the event.

But where the activity occurred, on 200 chess boards opened on tables arranged in rectangles, there was a general calm.

The masters moved between the tables, playing as many as 20 games at a time. The challengers were seated, plotting their moves, receiving occasional suggestions from those standing behind them waiting to play next.

"It was a matter of our playing a simultaneous game against a well thought out game," said Tim Redman, who, at 22, is recognized an expert by the U.S. Chess Federation.

Redman said he faced about 50 opponents within six hours. He was among the chess club's group who lost to one of three persons who won a McGovern-Nixon chess set sculptured by Alexander Silveri, retired Austrian professor of art.

"I blundered. That's how you always lose," Redman said. "He (his opponent) got the advantage. I tried to trap him and failed."

The 16 masters and experts who played from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. were surprised, they said, not so much at the numbers of people, but the quality of play.

"Usually, in a simultaneous game you can expect some pushovers," Redman said. "I had no easy games."

"We had the best chess players in the area out there today," Verber said. "They came to play. Before we even had our signs up to attract passersby, there must have been 900 people waiting."

Verber, who said the surging interest in chess is certainly due to the current chess championship match in Iceland between American challenger Bobby Fischer and Russia's Boris Spassky, said he expected about 2,000 games to be played. But he estimated near the day's end that as many as 3,000 were played and that hundreds of persons waited up to three hours to compete.

Convention Cost Study Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Claude Pepper says he is going to introduce legislation authorizing the creation of a national commission to study which expenses of national political conventions the federal government could pay.

In making the statement, the Florida Democrat Tuesday said it cost the city of Miami Beach three times the $1 million the Republicans gave the city. He said the Democrats' convention was a losing proposition too. "The cost of hosting a national convention has become too expensive, too much of a burden and too much of a responsibility for local communities to bear," Pepper said.

Roman Catholics Abandon Rent, Tax Strike After Year

BELFAST (AP) — About 1,000 Roman Catholic families have abandoned the rent and tax strike in Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second largest city, the Londonderry Development Commission said today.

The strike began a year ago as part of a campaign by Catholic civil rights activists to get jobs and housing on a par with the province's majority Protestants. Londonderry has more than 5,000 families living in city housing, and nearly 3,000 of them are in the Irish Republican Army strongholds of Creggan and Bogside that the British army occupied a month ago.

A commission spokesman said fewer than 1,500 Catholic families are withholding rents now, compared with about 2,500 at the height of the civil disobedience campaign.

"When all those innocent people died at the hands of the IRA on 'Bloody Friday' and when customs officers were killed in Newry last week by a terrorist bomb, scores of people came to us and said they wanted to start paying their rents again and cooperate with the authorities," he said.

"This was because they did not want to be seen supporting the IRA cause. It is the most significant evidence to date that the Catholic community is sickened by the outrages committed by the IRA."

Thirteen persons were killed on Bloody Friday, July 21, when the IRA bombed bus and railroad stations, a bar and stores in the heart of Belfast. Nine persons, including four customs officials and three terrorists, died in the Aug. 22 bomb blast at a Newry customs post.

The army announced, meanwhile, that it had seized more than 15,429 pounds of explosives in Belfast and Londonderry in the past month, along with 41,227 rounds of ammunition, 132 rifles, 16 machine guns and 112 other weapons.

A sniper killed a British soldier in Belfast Wednesday and another soldier died from injuries received in an explosion two weeks ago. Their deaths brought to 544 the confirmed total of those killed in three years of violence in Northern Ireland.

"Ghosts Go Haunting" by Sorche Nic Leodhas is a spine-tingling and hair-raising collection of ghost stories from Scotland and Ireland. These excellent read-aloud stories have been illustrated with handsome woodcuts by Nomy Hogrogian. "Ghosts Who Went To School" is a timely story by Judith Spearing. Mortimer and Wilbur Temple are two young ghosts who want more than anything else to go to school. When they do, the teachers are dismayed and confused, the children are greatly amused, and Willie suddenly can make good grades in arithmetic and spelling! Drawings are by Marvin Glass.

Dandy is the name of a girl with a fondness for an imaginary squirrel monkey, the mountain behind her house, and big words. "Dandy's Mountain" by Thomas Fall tells of how she tries to help her troubled cousin, Bruce. He has come to spend the summer in the Adirondacks and displays only hatred for everything and everyone—especially Dandy. Illustrations are by Juan Carlos Barberis.

Younger readers will enjoy "Kit Carson, Mountain Man." It was on a trading-trapping expedition from Taos across the desert to California, that Kit first showed his skill as a mountain man. Margaret Bell tells this true story of a favorite hero. The drawings of Harry Daugherty depict the characters and action with forcefulness and drama. Older boys may prefer Ralph Moody's "Kit Carson" and the "Wild Frontier" illustrated by Stanley Gali. This is an account of the boy who grew to be a courageous mountain man, trapper, scout and Indian Agent.

Kentuckian Katharine E. Wilkie's "Daniel Boone," covers the significant events of this pioneer's life in a lively manner for beginning readers. Older boys will prefer the exciting and well-written account of "Daniel Boone: The Opening of the Wilderness" by John Mason Brown. "Daniel Boone Wilderness Scout" by Stewart Edward White tells of the adventures, captures, escapes, and battles of this great frontiersman. This well told tale of an exciting and dangerous period in U.S. history was illustrated by Harry Daugherty.

Boys who like Indian stories will want to read "Geronimo: The Last Apache War Chief" and "Cochise: Apache Warrior and Statesman" by Edgar Wyatt. These fast moving biographies have been illustrated by Allan Houser. Apache artist and descendant of Geronimo. Geronimo fought against the United States for forty years. No white man was ever able to capture this warrior whose surrender brought an end to the Indian Wars. Cochise was an able and honorable leader who spend his life trying to live peacefully with the white man.

The bold drawings and eye catching color of Ingri and Edgar Parin d'Aulaire's "Buffalo Bill" will appeal to younger readers. "Buffalo Bill" by Shannon Garst tells the story of the scout, plainsman and Pony Express rider for older boys. Other tales of the action packed days of the Old West include "The Story of Davy Crockett" by Enid Lamonte Meadcroft and "Dan Frontier and the Wagon Train"

2 Tiffin Children Die In Blaze

TIFFIN, Ohio (AP) — Two small children died Thursday night as fire swept the straw-filled farm building where they were playing.

Seneca County sheriff's deputies said the children apparently had been playing with matches.

The children were identified as Christine Marie Magers, 6, of Rt. 2, Tiffin, and Richard Rumschley, 3, of Tiffin.

The fire was on the Magers' farm.

Governor Gives Aid To Hospitals

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John Gilligan Wednesday took action to "ease the terrible financial crisis" in Cleveland hospitals and directed an I-told-you-so swipe at the General Assembly.

Gilligan authorized the Ohio Department of Public Welfare to seek approval of an increase in reimbursements to Ohio hospitals for outpatient services to the indigent.

Gilligan's proposal would change the reimbursement formula from the present $10 per outpatient visit to a new formula that would cover "reasonable costs."

The governor said the cost of the new program would be $6 million for the remainder of the biennium — $3.2 million from federal funds and the rest from the state.

Gilligan took a slap at the legislature as he authorized the effort to change the reimbursement formula. He said it "may require us to cut back in other areas as we reach the end of the biennium."

Gilligan said he had predicted the crisis in hospital finances and asked for the General Assembly to appropriate more money last year for health care to the "indigent ill."

"The legislature saw fit to eliminate that request just as it cut the existing health care appropriation by $67 million," Gilligan said. "The current financial crisis in Cleveland's hospitals is the result."

"It is clear," Gilligan added, "that without assistance from the state, hospitals serving Clevelanders poor will be forced to close their outpatient clinics. We simply cannot afford to let this happen."

Atty. Gen. Brown Wants 2nd Term

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Atty. Gen. William J. Brown said Wednesday he will seek reelection as attorney general in 1974, and has no plans to challenge Gov. John J. Gilligan for the Democratic nomination for governor that year.

Brown told The Associated Press that he also has no intention of seeking any higher office than the one he now holds, including the U.S. Senate seat of Sen. William B. Saxbe.

Saxbe is a former attorney general who will be up for reelection in 1974.

"I want to stay right here," said the 32-year-old Ohio Northern University law graduate. He denied widely-publicized reports of a feud between him and Gilligan. He pointed out that "differences of opinion are nothing new" between a governor and an attorney general, both of whom have statewide constituencies.

Brown said Gilligan is aware of "my intentions," and he insisted that some newspaper accounts of his (Brown's) having higher ambitions were "speculative."

Gilligan also has said he plans to seek reelection in 1974.

Butz; Achievements Now Problems

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz said today that some of America's most beneficial achievements "now stare us in the face as problems."

Butz, in a speech prepared for Alpha Zeta national honorary agricultural fraternity, specifically mentioned DES, a drug used in feed to fatten cattle, and DDT, an insecticide.

DES, which stands for diethylstilbestrol, was banned earlier this month by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, and DDT earlier this year after research showed they were dangerous to humans and the environment.

Butz said both DES and DDT must have replacements.

"Society has decided that we can afford the luxury of avoiding the minuscule risk which DDT has always presented as it saved the lives of an untold number of people," he said. "We now must find something as effective, yet safer."

"Society has decided that we can afford the luxury of eliminating the questionable risks which DES-fed meat always brought while it cut costs so more Americans could afford to put red meat on the table. We now need to find something equally as effective and as cheap, if we can, yet with no risk."

He said other demands on agriculture and science include ways to prevent coyotes and eagles from killing young lambs and cattle, to fertilize crops with less alteration to the environment and to dispose of livestock waste.

Butz said these environmental challenges will mount rather than subside in the future. He added, "The demands man will place on science to service agriculture in the years ahead will be beyond imagination."

On other topics, he said:

"Farm exports were slumping in 1968, but have since responded to thrusts of an expanding agriculture. In the fiscal year ended June 30, our farm exports totalled $8 billion—an all-time record." A total of $10 billion has been set for 1976.

"I believe in a free agriculture where family farmers earn in the marketplace a return for their investment, their management skill, their efforts and their risk, which is commensurate with the return those inputs would earn elsewhere in our economy. . . It will take farmers, even better trained, even more tenacious, and even more persistent than the ones we have today."

Alfa Zeta, which is observing its diamond anniversary, began its three-day national conclave Wednesday at Ohio State University. About 120 undergraduate students from 48 states are attending.

Roman Catholics Abandon Rent, Tax Strike After Year

BELFAST (AP) — About 1,000 Roman Catholic families have abandoned the rent and tax strike in Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second largest city, the Londonderry Development Commission said today.

The strike began a year ago as part of a campaign by Catholic civil rights activists to get jobs and housing on a par with the province's majority Protestants. Londonderry has more than 5,000 families living in city housing, and nearly 3,000 of them are in the Irish Republican Army strongholds of Creggan and Bogside that the British army occupied a month ago.

A commission spokesman said fewer than 1,500 Catholic families are withholding rents now, compared with about 2,500 at the height of the civil disobedience campaign.

"When all those innocent people died at the hands of the IRA on 'Bloody Friday' and when customs officers were killed in Newry last week by a terrorist bomb, scores of people came to us and said they wanted to start paying their rents again and cooperate with the authorities," he said.

"This was because they did not want to be seen supporting the IRA cause. It is the most significant evidence to date that the Catholic community is sickened by the outrages committed by the IRA."

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — If Dinah Shore's morning television program had a jump in its Nielsen rating a few weeks ago, she may have my five-year-old daughter to thank.

For one week—Thursday through Wednesday—we were one of the 1,200 families coast-to-coast keeping track of the television programs we were watching so the Nielsen people could tell television executives how many million people were watching their shows.

It all started with a telephone call a week or two before our important week.

The caller identified himself as a Nielsen representative and then asked if I owned a television set.

I looked up at the 12-inch portable my wife and I had splurged $100 on shortly after we were married eight years ago and said "Certainly."

He asked if we were willing to be a Nielsen family for a week and faithfully keep track of all television programs anyone in the family watched and report them without fail.

I vowed we would, on our sacred honor.

Our Nielsen diary came in the mail a week later. The family gathered around as I opened it and discovered two quarters attached to a card with a note this was a "token" payment for our work.

With the diary were instructions saying, "your diary is important." Another section that told how we were "computer-selected from a list of households" in our community made us feel only a little less important.

The Nielsen people wanted a written record of television viewing in our home by all members of the family.

For most families, that might not be a problem. But any of us Associated Press newsmen do not work the most regular hours. And most of that week I was assigned on an evening shift, not arriving home until shortly after 10:30 p.m.

When I work late, my wife, Carol, usually adjusts her schedule to mine—going to bed late and sleeping late in the morning.

However, Suzanne, our five-year-old, stays on a regular day schedule. She gets up, wakes someone up to fix her breakfast, and once breakfast is done and the parents are back in bed, she either takes out a toy and plays or watches television.

When Carol and I arose, one of us would immediately grab a television listing and go through it with Suzanne to find out what she had watched.

A time or two she denied watching any television. But usually she watched Family Affair, Bewitched, maybe a game show and once or twice a soap opera, and of course Dinah Shore.

During the week we were a Nielsen family, I hurried home each night in time to watch Dick Cavett.

I had heard of the appeal by Jack Parr to let the Niensens know there was an audience out there. And here I was in a position to be counted.

And one night when my daughter woke up and came downstairs while the program was on, I let her watch for a half-hour.

Who knows? A half hour of watching by a five-year-old being counted by Nielsen might be the little extra needed to keep the program on the air.

Man Guilty Of DWI; Leaving Accident Charges Dismissed

James A. Gilchrist, 48, Delaware, who was charged with driving while intoxicated and leaving the scene of an accident by Deputy Sheriff Jim Deal Tuesday, had one of the charges dropped by acting Municipal Court Judge Kenneth Robbins Wednesday.

Deal stopped Gilchrist about 6 p.m. Tuesday when he discovered that the Delaware man was drinking while driving his truck.

After being stopped, Gilchrist threatened Deal with a crow bar.

Gilchrist later admitted to driving off Emerson Road before his arrest and splintering a telephone pole. He said he drove away from the accident.

Judge Robbins found him guilty of driving while intoxicated and fined him $150 and costs, sentenced him to three days in the Pickaway County jail and suspended his driving rights for six months.

He found Gilchrist not guilty of leaving the scene of an accident.

In other court cases, Neva Schlichter, 41, Route 5, was fined $10 and costs for failing to yield the right of way.

Michael Hankins, 19, Route 3, was fined $10 and costs for failing to heed a stop sign.

Bruce Cassidy, 21, Route 2, Ashville, forfeited $19 bond for speeding 60 miles per hour in a 50 zone.

Florence Bigham, 28, Route 3, forfeited $19 bond for having defective exhaust system on her vehicle.

Knudsen Jewelry Is Stolen

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation entered Wednesday the theft of $101,000 worth of jewelry from the Lyndhurst apartment of Semon Knudsen, chairman and president of White Motor Corp.

An FBI spokesman said it entered the investigation because it was probable whoever stole the jewelry would try to dispose of it in another state.

Police said 12 pieces of jewelry were taken from a dressing room chest, including bracelets, rings and earrings. A pair of diamond earrings mounted in platinum were valued at $30,000.

The theft, reported to police Aug. 9 but not made public until this week, occurred after the Knudsens turned off a burglar alarm when they went to dinner. The couple discovered the theft when they returned home.

Police said the apartments have a private security force and all entrances and exits to the building are monitored on closed circuit television. There was no sign of forced entry, police said.

Knudsen said the jewels were insured.

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — If Dinah Shore's morning television program had a jump in its Nielsen rating a few weeks ago, she may have my five-year-old daughter to thank.

For one week—Thursday through Wednesday—we were one of the 1,200 families coast-to-coast keeping track of the television programs we were watching so the Nielsen people could tell television executives how many million people were watching their shows.

It all started with a telephone call a week or two before our important week.

Logan Elm Moves To Mid-State

Logan Elm High School was officially admitted to the Mid-State League at the league meeting Thursday, according to Dick Smith, Amanda Clearcreek principal who is a member of the Mid-State board.

Sports activity in the Mid-State will begin for the Braves as soon as they have fulfilled their commitment to the Scioto Valley Conference. They will compete on the high school, freshmen and junior high levels, both boys and girls, in the Mid-State League.

John Henn, superintendent of Logan Elm school district, expects the Braves to participate in baseball, track and golf in the spring of 1973.

Participation in basketball and football will begin as soon as the Braves have completed their SVC obligations and can be worked into the schedule of the Mid-State schools.

The league is composed of Amanda-Clearcreek, Fairfield Union, Fisher Catholic, Berne Union, Canal Winchester, Bloom-Carroll, Millersport, Liberty Union and Pickerington.

The move will bring Logan Elm into competition with more Central District Schools. Fairfield Union and Bloom-Carroll are Class AA schools with Logan Elm and Pickerington expected to move into the AA category next year.

Top Track Stars Meet In Olympics

MUNICH (AP) — The splendorous, $100-million Olympic Stadium here welcomes the world's greatest track athletes today in what the games' organizers hope will be the most accurate if not the most electric of running, jumping and throwing competitions.

The electricity will be provided by a plethora of computer-linked gadgets designed to more easily and accurately determine winners and their marks and speed the answers to the world.

Additional electricity on this first of nine days will be generated by such world record holders as Dave Hemery, Eddie Hart, Dave Wottle, Heide Rosendahl, Hildegard Flack and Paul Nihill.

The two final events on the card—the women's long jump and 20-kilometer walk—normally lack dramatics but the first day of track thrills those events into center stage.

Nihill, England's newest sensation, set the world record for the 20-kilometer walk at 1 hour 24 minutes 50 seconds, as he shared the mark of 1:25:19 set by East Germany's Peter Frenkel earlier this year.

Nihill is favored to win here but Frenkel and teammate Hans Reimann and Russia's Nikolay Smaga fill out a tough field.

Shooters Set American Olympic Mark

By BOB JOHNSON

Associated Press Sports Editor

MUNICH (AP) — It was the best of days for one sharpshooter. It was very nearly the worst of days for 10 others. It was the bitterest of days for one high flyer. It was the sweetest of days for another.

"I don't spend 30 hours a week at a hobby," John Writer said Wednesday after winning the three-position small-bore rifle and setting a bit of American Olympic history. "This is a sport. Real competition."

By winning the gold medal at these 20th Summer Games, the 27-year-old Chicago marksman gave the United States its second shooting medal, the first time the United States has won more than one in the traditionally European-dominated sport.

Writer scored 1,166 points out of a possible 1,200 in the prone, kneeling and standing positions. And the United States got its third shooting medal when Lanny Bassham of Comanche, Tex., an Army marksmanship instructor at Ft. Benning, Ga., got the silver, finishing behind Writer with 1,157 points.

Vic Auer of North Hollywood, Calif., had gotten American small bore competition.

The 10 other sharpshooters are known collectively as the U.S. basketball team, whose supremacy of the game in the Olympics very nearly came to an end Wednesday.

"We needed a game like this where we had to come from behind," Coach Hank Iba said of his kids after they rallied from seven points down in the second half to pull out a 61-54 triumph over Brazil.

The victory was the fourth for the Yanks, now undefeated in 59 contests stretching back to the 1936 Berlin Games, when the sport was introduced to the Olympics.

The bitter high flyer was Bob Seagren, America's premiere pole vaulter, angered over what he called "obviously a political decision" on the part of the International Amateur Athletic Federation to outlaw his green vaulting pole for the Games.

The pole, with a newer weave of fiberglass than the old ones, came out last year and Seagren, rebounding from knee surgery, used it to set his world record of 18 feet 5 inches.

After he set the record last month, the IAAF banned the pole saying it hadn't been available for world-wide use.

On Monday, the IAAF reversed itself, reinstating the pole. On Wednesday the federation reversed itself again. "It's a personal vendetta against me and against America," said the angry Seagren of Monterey Park, Calif.

Seagren got a bit of good news—Sweden and a bit of disastrous news—when it was announced that his stiffest competitor for the gold, Kjell Isaksson, would not compete because of groin and leg injuries.

The happiest high flyer was Vladimir Vasin, a Moscow University economics student who won the gold in springboard diving, ending a 60-year U.S. domination of the three-meter event.

Ken Anderson Leads Bengals In Passing

CINCINNATI (AP) — Statistics from the Cincinnati Bengals show that quarterback Ken Anderson continues to lead in that position with 40 completions in 57 pass attempts for a 70 per cent average.

Figures for the four pre-season games showed Anderson hit for 404 yards and two touchdowns but had three interceptions.

The second-year player from Augustana College in Illinois is followed by regular quarterback Virgil Carter who completed 15 of 31 passes for 162 yards and one touchdown.

Coach Paul Brown said Wednesday that Anderson would probably start Sunday in Columbus in an exhibition with the Cleveland Browns.

Paul Robinson leads the running backs with 131 yards on 33 carries for a 3.9 yard average and two touchdowns. Jess Phillips has 104 yards on 25 carries for an average of 4.2 yards and two touchdowns.

Chip Myers was the top pass receiver with ten for 126 yards and two touchdowns, while Speedy Thomas had nine for 109 yards.

Safety Tommy Casanova, a rookie from Louisiana State University, has a 24.6-yard average on five punt returns, while another rookie, Bernard Jackson, returned eight kick-offs for an average of 21.6 yards.

Placekicker Horst Muhlmann leads scorers with 25 points on five of six field goal attempts and ten for 11 extra point attempts.

The Bengals have allowed opponents 764 yards passing while gaining 515, and gained 325 yards rushing while allowing opponents 545 yards.

Clemente, Rose Tie Baseball Club Marks

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

Associated Press Sports Writer

Records are made to be broken, but for the time being Pittsburgh's Roberto Clemente and Cincinnati's Pete Rose will have to settle for ties.

Clemente singled twice in the Pirates' 11-0 romp over San Diego Wednesday night and tied Honus Wagner's club mark of 2,970 career hits.

Rose managed one single in the Reds' 4-2 triumph over the New York Mets and matched Vada Pinson's Cincinnati record of 1,881 hits.

Elsewhere in the National League, Houston downed Philadelphia 5-3, the Chicago Cubs edged Los Angeles 9-8 on Jim Hickman's 11th-inning home run, San Francisco nipped St. Louis 3-2 and Montreal shaded Atlanta 3-2.

"I don't worry about records," Clemente said. "All my life I just play the game the best I can. I didn't even know I was close to Wagner. The people who keep the statistics never tell me anything."

The people in the stands at Three Rivers Stadium told Clemente something when they gave him a standing ovation.

"Everybody started cheering," Clemente said, "but I didn't know why. I didn't know what was going on until I looked at the scoreboard and saw the message. When I singled in the first inning, the second base umpire (Ed Sudol) told me, 'If you get another base hit it looks like I'll have to give you the ball.' I wondered what he was talking about."

In addition to Clemente's two singles, Dave Cash hit a three-run homer, Willie Stargell slammed a solo homer and Manny Sanguillen drove in three runs with a pair of singles. Bruce Kison blanked the Padres on six hits.

Cincinnati's Rose also received a standing ovation, but said he wasn't aware of it.

"Did they stand up for me?"

He asked. "I didn't realize it. I just saw my family standing and I thought someone was standing in front of them. My son (Pete Jr., age 2½) told me I'd get the record tonight."

Westfall, Logan Elm Hold Pre-Season Grid Scrimmages

Logan Elm and Westfall both participated in pre-season controlled scrimmage games Wednesday evening.

The Logan Elm squad went against a tough Berne Union team from the Mid-State League at Logan Elm. Berne Union scored six times while Logan Elm scored on two occasions during the scrimmage.

The Braves first score came when Brian Barr picked up a Berne Union fumble and galloped 60 yards for a touchdown and the second came when quarterback, Steve Sargent, drove three yards up the center for a score.

Bob Stant, Logan Elm's head football coach stated that, "the scrimmage pointed out some of the weak points in the Braves' defense and the team will be working harder on offense execution."

Westfall scrimmaged Amanda-Clearcreek at Amanda.

Westfall coach John Glanton reported that Amanda scored three times to Westfall's zero in the clash between the first team squads and Amanda's second unit outscored Westfall's number two unit 1-0.

Both teams will be working on offense and ironing out the mistakes before their opening games. Westfall will open Sept. 8 against Berne Union in a home game and Logan Elm play their first game at home against Amanda Sept. 8.

Strong Fight Made In U.S. Open Tennis

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — The spectators got more than their money's worth when play began in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

No. 1 seed Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C. was out on the ropes by 15-year-old Billy Martin of Palo Verde, Calif.

Smith, the 1971 and 1969 winner here, rebounded, however, for a 5-7, 6-1, 7-5, 6-3 triumph.

Deny Joe Colombo Has WHL Interest

WINNIPEG (AP) — Principals of the fledgling World Hockey Association have vehemently denied that Joseph Colombo Jr., president of the American-Italian League, has any financial interest in the new league.

In a telephone interview from Los Angeles, league President Gary Davidson said Wednesday, "We have no record of Mr. Colombo having any interest in any WHA team. He has no interest whatsoever in the Winnipeg Jets."

Colombo, 42, is a former

The Mets took a 2-1 lead on Dave Marshall's seventh-inning homer but the Reds rallied for three in their half on singles by Tony Perez, Denis Menke and Hal McRae and Joe Hague's two-run double.

Philadelphia's 21-game .winners Steve Carlton held Houston hitless until Tommy Helms' fifth-inning single touched off a two-run rally. Helms scored on Larry Howard's double and Howard tallied on Roger Metzger's infield chopper. Bob Watson singled another run across in the sixth before Carlton left for a pinch hitter.

Chicago's Hickman socked his game-winning homer on a 3-2 pitch from Los Angeles relief ace Jim Brewer. The Cubs wiped out a 6-1 deficit in the third inning, which included two of the four wild pitches uncorked by Dodger hurlers. Jose Cardenal also homered for Chicago.

San Francisco jumped on Bob Gibson for two runs and a 3-1 lead in the ninth inning on a walk and singles by Ken Henderson, Dave Rader and Tito Fuentes to beat St. Louis. Gibson and Bernie Carbo homered for the Cardinal runs.

Montreal scored in all sorts of ways to beat Atlanta. The Expos got a run in the first inning off Phil Niekro on a single, two wild pitches and a passed ball. Ron Woods homered in the second and singles by winning pitcher Ernie McAnally, Tim Foli and Ken Singleton produced the winning run in the eighth. Ralph Garr and Earl Williams homered for the Braves.

Logan Elm Moves To Mid-State

Logan Elm High School was officially admitted to the Mid-State League at the League meeting Thursday, according to Dick Smith, Amanda Clearcreek principal who is a member of the Mid-State board.

Sports activity in the Mid-State will begin for the Braves as soon as they have fulfilled their commitment in the Scioto Valley Conference. They will compete on the high school, freshmen and junior high levels, both boys and girls, in the Mid-State League.

John Henn, superintendent of Logan Elm school district, expects the Braves to participate in baseball, track and golf in the spring of 1973.

Participation in basketball and football will begin as soon as the Braves have completed their SVC obligations and can be worked into the schedule of the Mid-State schools.

The league is composed of Amanda-Clearcreek, Fairfield Union, Fisher Catholic, Berne Union, Canal Winchester, Bloom-Carroll, Millersport, Liberty Union and Pickerington. The move will bring Logan Elm into competition with more Central District Schools. Fairfield Union and Bloom-Carroll are Class AA schools with Logan Elm and Pickerington expected to move into the AA category next year.

Top Track Stars Meet In Olympics

MUNICH (AP) — The splendorous, $100-million Olympic Stadium here welcomes the world's greatest track athletes today in what the games' organizers hope will be the most accurate if not the most electric of running, jumping and throwing competitions.

The electricity will be provided by a plethora of computer-linked gadgets designed to more easily and accurately determine winners and their marks and speed the answers to the world.

Additional electricity on this first of nine days will be generated by such world record holders as Dave Hemery, Eddie Hart, Dave Wottle, Heide Rosendahl, Hildegard Flack and Paul Nihill.

The two final events on the card—the women's long jump and 20-kilometer walk—normally lack dramatics but the first day of track thrills those events into center stage.

Nihill, England's newest sensation, set the world record for the 20-kilometer walk at 1 hour 24 minutes 50 seconds, as he shared the mark of 1:25:19 set by East Germany's Peter Frenkel earlier this year.

Nihill is favored to win here but Frenkel and teammate Hans Reimann and Russia's Nikolay Smaga fill out a tough field.

Shooters Set American Olympic Mark

By BOB JOHNSON
Associated Press Sports Editor
MUNICH (AP) — It was the best of days for one sharpshooter. It was very nearly the worst of days for 10 others. It was the bitterest of days for one high flyer. It was the sweetest of days for another.

"I don't spend 30 hours a week at a hobby," John Writer said Wednesday after winning the three-position small-bore rifle and setting a bit of American Olympic history. "This is a sport. Real competition." By winning the gold medal at these 20th Summer Games, the 27-year-old Chicago marksman gave the United States its second shooting medal, the first time the United States has won more than one in the traditionally European-dominated sport.

Writer scored a world and Olympic record 1,166 points out of a possible 1,200 in the prone, kneeling and standing positions. And the United States got its third shooting medal when Lanny Bassham of Comanche,

Tex., an Army marksmanship instructor at Ft. Benning, Ga., got the silver, finishing behind Writer with 1,137 points.

Vic Auer of North Hollywood, Calif., had gotten American small bore competition.

The 10 other sharpshooters are known collectively as the U.S. basketball team, whose supremacy of the game in the Olympics very nearly came to an end Wednesday.

"We needed a game like this where we had to come from behind," Coach Hank Iba said of his kids after they rallied from seven points down in the second half to pull out a 61-54 triumph over Brazil.

The victory was the fourth for the Yanks, now undefeated in 59 contests stretching back to the 1936 Berlin Games, when the sport was introduced to the Olympics.

The bitter high flyer was Bob Seagren, America's premiere pole vaulter, angered over what he called "obviously a political decision" on the part of the International Amateur Athletic Federation to outlaw his green vaulting pole for the Games.

The pole, with a newer weave of fiberglass than the old ones, came out last year and Seagren, rebounding from knee surgery, used it to set his world record of 18 feet 5 inches.

After he set the record last month, the IAAF banned the pole saying it hadn't been available for world-wide use.

On Monday, the IAAF reversed itself, reinstating the pole. On Wednesday the federation reversed itself again. "It's a personal vendetta against me and against America," said the angry Seagren of Monterey Park, Calif.

Seagren got a bit of good news—and Sweden a bit of disastrous news—when it was announced that his stiffest competitor for the gold, Kjell Isaksson, would not compete because of groin and leg injuries.

The happiest high flyer was Vladimir Vasin, a Moscow University economics student who won the gold in springboard diving, ending a 60-year U.S. domination of the three-meter event.

Ken Anderson Leads Bengals In Passing

CINCINNATI (AP) — Statistics from the Cincinnati Bengals show that quarterback Ken Anderson continues to lead in that position with 40 completions in 57 pass attempts for a 70 per cent average.

Figures for the four pre-season games showed Anderson hit for 404 yards and two touchdowns but had three interceptions.

The second-year player from Augustana College in Illinois is followed by regular quarterback Virgil Carter who completed 15 of 31 passes for 162 yards and one touchdown.

Coach Paul Brown said Wednesday that Anderson would probably start Sunday in Columbus in an exhibition with the Cleveland Browns.

Paul Robinson leads the runningbacks with 131 yards on 33 carries for a 3.9-yard average and two touchdowns. Jess Phillips has 104 yards on 25 carries for an average of 4.2 yards and two touchdowns.

Chip Myers was the top pass receiver with ten for 126 yards and two touchdowns, while Speedy Thomas had nine for 109 yards.

Safety Tommy Casanova, a rookie from Louisiana State University, has a 21.6-yard average on five punt returns, while another rookie, Bernard Jackson, returned eight kickoffs for an average of 21.6 yards.

Placekicker Horst Muhlmann leads scorers with 25 points on five of six field goal attempts and ten for 11 extra point attempts.

The Bengals have allowed opponents 764 yards passing while gaining 515, and gained 525 yards rushing while allowing opponents 545 yards.

Quarterback Spot Up For Grabs At OSU

By GEORGE STRODE
Associated Press Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An uncertain quarterbacking situation may keep Ohio State from regaining national college football prominence this fall.

The Buckeyes won a national title and three Big Ten crowns in 1968-70 riding up a 27-2 record before tumbling to 6-4 a year ago.

Ohio State returns 35 lettermen, 28 of whom started at least once last fall. Pushing the veterans are the mainstays of an unbeaten freshman squad.

But, even with that wealth of talent, skeptics say a Buckeye comeback hinges on quarterbacks Greg Hare, Steve Morrison and Dave Purdy.

"The quarterback job is still up in the air," admits Woody Hayes, the crusty dean of Big Ten coaches who launched his 22nd Ohio State season with practice this week.

"I'd guess Hare probably would start," says Hayes, whose team carries a rare three-game losing streak into the home opener Sept. 16 against Iowa.

Hare started some games when Don Lamka was hurt in 1971. His five interceptions in 59 attempts didn't set well with Hayes.

"He'll have to stop making mistakes," the Buckeye mentor said of Hare, a 6-foot-3, 200-pound junior from Cumberland, Md.

Purdy and Morrison are sophomores who have been troubled by injuries.

Purdy, a 6-2, 188-pounder from Swanton, Ohio, was running No. 1 in spring practice when a broken leg sidelined him.

Morrison, 6-3 and 204 pounds from Huntington, W. Va., was the star of the spring game, hitting 9 of 18 passes for 147 yards. His freshman season was slowed by a shoulder he hurt when he fell from a horse.

Glaring weaknesses are otherwise missing on what Hayes terms "my deepest squad in 22 seasons."

The man who has coached 140 Ohio State triumphs makes it clear he will return to his favorite rushing game with that kind of talent.

"We'll be better offensively. We're going to run more. We're going to be right up there," says Hayes.

The likely running backs will be fullback Harold (Champ) Klenson (220), wingback Morris Stradshaw (200) and tailback Rick Galbos (210), the teams No. 1 rusher who divided his time between fullback and wingback in 1971.

Henson paced the freshmen rushers with almost eight yards per carry. Stradshaw, with 9.6 sprint speed, showed in spring practice he may be ready to fulfill the promise Hayes saw in him as an all-state Illinois back.

Line regulars back are guards Chuck Bonica (256) and Jim Kregel (234) and tackle Merv Teague (221). John Hicks (252), the other starting tackle, would have been a 1971 regular if a preseason injury had not idled him.

Sophomores figure to start at two line spots, with Steve Myers (227) or Steve Luke (195) at center and Mike Bartoszek (206) at tight end. The No. 1 split end candidate is junior Dave Hazel (188).

The defense will be anchored by returning regulars George Hasenohrl and Shad Williams at tackles, end Tom Marenti, linebackers Randy Gradishar and Vic Koegel and backs Jeff Davis and Rick Seifert.

RESOLUTION NO. 892
A RESOLUTION PROVIDING FOR THE AWARD OF AN AWARD OF WATER LINE BONDS OF THE VILLAGE OF ASHVILLE, OHIO, AND DECLARING AN EMERGENCY.

WHEREAS, after notice duly published as required by law, bids have been received for the purchase of an issue of $33,300 Village of Ashville, Ohio, Water Line Bonds which have been duly authorized by Council; and

WHEREAS, it has been determined that the bid of J. A. White & Company of Cincinnati, Ohio, for said bonds with a premium of $89.00 and to bear an interest rate of 5 1/4 per centum per annum is the highest bid based upon the lowest rate of interest received at such rate;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE VILLAGE OF ASHVILLE, Pickaway County, Ohio:

Section 1. That the aforesaid Water Line Bonds of this Village be and they hereby are awarded and sold to J. A. White & Company in accordance with the terms of its bid, said bonds to bear the rate of interest provided in said bid and hereinafter recited.

Section 2. That said bonds, after being duly executed, shall be delivered by the Clerk-Treasurer to said bidder upon payment of the sum provided in the bid aforesaid together with a true transcript of the proceedings.

Section 3. It is hereby certified that it is not expected that the proceeds of the issue of such bonds will be used in a manner that would cause such bonds to be arbitrage bonds under the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended, and valid regulations thereunder; that all of the proceeds of such bonds are needed for the purpose for which they are hereby authorized to be issued; the project for which such bonds are to be issued has been completed with due diligence, all available proceeds will be expended to obtain the temporary period reasonably required through the exercise of due diligence to make any final payments, and any such proceeds will be invested or deposited only for a temporary period until needed for the purpose for which the bonds are issued; and that this certificate is based upon all the relevant facts and circumstances in existence, including those more particularly to be set forth in the certificate of the fiscal officer entitled "FRC Section 103(d) Certificate" which shall be incorporated in the transcript of proceedings pertaining to such bond and which certificate is adopted and incorporated herein by reference.

The Village of Ashville covenants to the purchasers of such bonds that it will make no use of the proceeds of such bonds under which, if such use had been reasonably expected on the date of issue of such bonds, would have caused them to be arbitrage bonds under Section 103 (d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended, as in effect on the date of such issue, and any valid regulations thereunder; and that it will comply with the requirements of said Section 103 (d) and the requirements of any valid regulations thereunder, all to the extent as may be necessary, at the time of the use of such proceeds, so that such use will not cause such bonds to be arbitrage bonds under Section 103 (d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended.

Section 4. That the Clerk of this Council is hereby authorized and directed to deliver a certificate of adoption of this resolution to the Auditor of Pickaway County.

Section 5. This resolution is hereby declared to be an emergency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety of said Village, and for the further reason that the immediate sale and delivery of said bonds is required to provide funds to retire the outstanding note issued in anticipation thereof in order to protect the credit of this Village, wherefore this resolution shall be in effect immediately upon its adoption.

Quarterback Spot Up For Grabs At OSU

By GEORGE STRODE
Associated Press Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An uncertain quarterbacking situation may keep Ohio State from regaining national college football prominence this fall.

The Buckeyes won a national title and three Big Ten crowns in 1968-70, falling up a 27-2 record before tumbling to 6-4 a year ago.

Ohio State returns 33 lettermen, 28 of whom started at least once last fall. Pushing the veterans are the mainstays of an unbeaten freshman squad.

But, even with that wealth of talent, skeptics say a Buckeye comeback hinges on quarterbacks Greg Hare, Steve Morrison and Dave Purdy.

"The quarterback job is still up in the air," admits Woody Hayes, the crusty dean of Big Ten coaches who launched his 22nd Ohio State season with practice this week.

"I'd guess Hare probably would start," says Hayes, whose team carries a rare three-game losing streak into the home opener Sept. 16 against Iowa.

Hare started some games when Don Lanika was hurt in 1971. His five interceptions in 59 attempts didn't set well with Hayes.

"He'll have to stop making mistakes," the Buckeye mentor said of Hare, a 6-foot-3, 200-pound junior from Cumberland, Md.

Purdy and Morrison are sophomores who have been troubled by injuries.

Purdy, a 6-2, 188-pounder from Swanton, Ohio, was running No. 1 in spring practice when a broken leg sidelined him.

Morrison, 6-3 and 204 pounds from Huntington, W. Va., was the star of the spring game, hitting 9 of 18 passes for 147 yards. His freshman season was slowed by a shoulder he hurt when he fell from a horse.

Glaring weaknesses are otherwise missing on what Hayes terms "my deepest squad in 22 seasons."

The man who has coached 140 Ohio State triumphs makes it clear he will return to his favorite rushing game with that kind of talent.

"We'll be better offensively. We're going to run more. We're going to be right up there," says Hayes.

The likely running backs will be fullback Harold (Champ) Jensen (220), wingback Morris Bradshaw (200) and tailback Rick Galbos (210), the teams No. 1 rusher who divided his time between fullback and wingback in 1971.

Henson paced the freshmen rushers with almost eight yards per carry. Bradshaw, with 9.6 sprint speed, showed in spring practice he may be ready to fulfill the promise Hayes saw in him as an all-state Illinois back.

Line regulars back are guards Chuck Bonica (256) and Jim Kregel (234) and tackle Merv Teague (221). John Hicks (252), the other starting tackle, would have been a 1971 regular if a preseason injury had not idled him.

Sophomores figure to start at two line spots, with Steve Myers (227) or Steve Luke (195) at center and Mike Bartoszek (206) at tight end. The No. 1 split end candidate is junior Dave Hazel (188).

The defense will be anchored by returning regulars George Hasenohrl and Shad Williams at tackles, end Tom Marent, linebackers Randy Gradishar and Vic Koegel and backs Jeff Davis and Rick Seifert.

ROUND-UP — Several unidentified motorists' steer a Charolais steer, a fugitive from Bowling Stock yard, into the front yard of the Bud Enoch home, Kingston Pike, Wednesday afternoon. The steer escaped from the stockyard about 1:15 p.m.

Wednesday and led city police as far north as High St. before turning back. The local policemen had it cornered in a back yard on Beaver St., but the steer jumped a fence and beat it down railroad tracks to the Circleville-Kingston Road. The police herded the exhausted animal to the city limits and left it to fend for itself out of the city. Onlookers and staff from the stock yard finally herded it to the Enoch home, where a startled Mrs. Enoch was mowing her front lawn when the steer charged by.

New State Office Building In Tenant Trouble Already

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — First, there was a fuss about where to build Ohio's new skyscraper office building.

Then came charges that construction was faulty.

Now, some officials don't want to move into it.

Atty. Gen. William Brown says he won't move into the structure unless he has to.

State Treasurer Gertrude Donahy says the same.

Brown said Wednesday he would prefer not only to remain in the Statehouse Annex, but locate his offices in the rest of it when the Ohio Supreme Court moves into the $57 million, 41-floor structure in downtown Columbus across from the capitol.

Reports yet to be confirmed have it the court isn't happy either.

Brown said he doesn't believe the annex will be razed to make way for landscaping and other similar improvements.

"That's nonsense," he said. He added he has heard there is "a move" in the legislature to save the annex. "Its worth at least $3 million to the state," he asserted.

Mrs. Donahy said she doesn't want to move because of the free rent her office now enjoys and for fear there wouldn't be room enough in the new building for her vaults, data processing, and other equipment.

The Ohio Building Authority, which contracted to build the facility with revenue bonds, plans to charge rent between $8 and $9 a square foot to the state agencies until the bonds are paid off. Aside from Mrs. Donahy, other departments, including insurance, have had officials quoted as saying the rent is to high compared to other local office space.

Judges of the Supreme Court who are slated to occupy floors two through five of the new building have not objected openly. However, some have expressed concern privately that their chambers and hearing rooms may be too close to downtown noise.

It will be up to the Legislative Office Building Committee to make changes in the occupancy plan, if there are to be any authority to the committee.

The legislature delegated the several downtown sites were debated for months before one was picked. Land deals couldn't be worked out in some cases and in others, prices were too high.

Several months after construction started, there were rumors that some of the steel beams were sagging. OBA Executive Director George Busche conceded there were some "deflections" which required the pouring of more concrete but maintained the building's "architectural integrity" was intact.

Rebuilt Auto

Not New One,

Lawsuit Alleges

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A Mayfield Heights car dealer was sued Wednesday for $100,000 in punitive damages for allegedly selling a rebuilt car as a new one.

Carl Suter of Cleveland charged in a Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court suit that he paid $4,548 for a 1970 Mercury at Hal Artz Lincoln-Mercury Inc. Suter alleged he was told the car was new and had been driven less than 100 miles.

The suit charged that the dealer failed to disclose that the auto had been wrecked and substantially damaged and had undergone substantial repairs.

The suit charged the dealer refused to return Suter's money when he discovered defects in the car.

3,000 Biblical Scholars Ponder 'Dehumanized Age'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three thousand biblical scholars will examine the role of religion in a "dehumanized age" during a conference beginning here this weekend.

The scholars, representing nearly all the intellectual bodies concerned with religion, will meet for five days starting Saturday for the first International Congress of Learned Societies in the Field of Religion.

With a theme of "Religion and the Humanization of Man," the scholars will seek ways to instill a humanizing of faith in the establishment-oriented church.

"Religion must come to a new way of looking at itself in Western civilization," says the conference chairman, Dr. James McConkey Robinson.

The scholars will hear a dozen major addresses and 450 research papers, many on religious topics, but others on women's lib, religion in an industrialized society and race relations.

Two hundred European scholars and a score from the Far East will join American theologians at the session.

The conference grew out of a desire of religious scholars to coordinate their activities and exchange ideas. Fifteen societies will participate.

"The real objective of religion — any religion — has always been the humanizing of man," Dr. Robinson said in an interview, "and unless we can deal away the verbiage and get with it (religion), faith is going to slough off, to the detriment of civilization."

Religion's emphasis has tended to be on the "next life," Dr. Robinson said, whereas the conference will emphasize that "religion is intended to grapple instead with this life," with such problems as the secularization of society and what Dr. Robinson said is the inability of "Christianization" and education to humanize man.
